Property owners howl in protest over strict new floodplain ordinance

By ROBERT MISKIMON

"THEY WANT TO tie up $37.5 million worth of Carmel Valley land in a floodplain!" — Robert Zobel, Valley property owner and member of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District committee studying the Carmel River.

"If you want to know what confiscation is, take a look at it!" —Stuyvesant Fish, major Carmel Valley property owner and proprietor of the Palo Corona (Fish) Ranch.

These were among the reactions of Carmel Valley property owners to a proposed Carmel River floodplain ordinance under revision and tentatively scheduled for a public hearing before the Monterey County Board of Supervisors June 30.

Supervisors returned the document to the county counsel's office for refinement and tightening of language pertaining to issuance of variances, removal of river vegetation, land management plans, maintenance of bridges, and penalties.

Zobel is one of the Carmel Valley property owners whose land along the Carmel River suffered serious erosion two years ago — not because of flooding but due to "degradation of the riparian vegetation," a point specifically addressed in the proposed ordinance.

The measure would prohibit alteration of the living river vegetation by removal, thinning, or other means. But supervisors want to amend the ordinance to permit landowners with ongoing property maintenance plans acceptable to the county to thin or trim some vegetation.

"The whole county process needs to be looked at," Zobel said. "The Board of Supervisors would like to get the Carmel River into protected waterway status, because if they do that then they'll get money from the state. And they need an ordinance like this in order to do that. A lot of that money would disappear in administration."

SUPERVISORS UNANIMOUSLY approved a request by Fifth District Supervisor William Peters to recommend state designation of the Carmel River as a protected waterway at their Tuesday, May 26 meeting. (See story elsewhere in this issue.)

Zobel labelled the floodplain ordinance a "remedial action" designed to restrict land use within the 200-foot corridor specified in the plan, "so the county won't have to deal with the problem of flooding."

Figuring a 400-foot wide swath of riverbank land, stretching 15 to 20 miles through the floor of the Valley, Zobel calculated that the value of that land contained within the 200-foot setback in the ordinance would be about $37.5 million.

"A better way to do this would be to form a Carmel River protection district and assess everyone who uses the river water — including people on the rest of the Peninsula — and use that money for the protection of the river," Zobel suggested.

Nick Lombardo, manager of Rancho Canada Golf Club in Carmel Valley, asked that his resort be excluded from the ordinance in an appearance before the supervisors.

"We're probably the major property controller in the entire area," Lombardo said. "We cover one mile of river, one-half mile on each side. I would almost fear we couldn't operate our golf facility if we had to go to a permit every time we wanted to trim the vegetation."

The area covered by the jurisdiction of the ordinance extends roughly from Camp Stephanie, about one mile east of Carmel Valley Village, to the western boundary of Rancho Canada Golf Club.

Ed Haber, president of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, said his resort has operated a riverbed maintenance program for some 18 years, since flooding caused the loss of a bridge and some land area — the kind of program supervisors want specified as acceptable land management under the ordinance.

"I think it's a marvelous thing to protect the river," Haber said. "But we have no plans to build anything on or near the river, so the 200-foot setback requirement wouldn't affect us."

•

FIFTH DISTRICT Supervisor William Peters, who worked with the county planning staff in preparation of the proposed ordinance, said its adoption would be only "an interim step" toward total protection of the Carmel River bank.

"This matter is before us somewhat out of frustration," Peters said. "Mr. (former supervisor) Farr tried for a number of years to get floodplain zoning and asked that we continue our efforts. When specifics of the Carmel Valley master plan come up for adoption, the ordinance can be amended at that point."

Robert Smith, engineer with the Monterey County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, told supervisors he supports the ordinance because "it will allow us the control that's been sadly lacking for a number of years" in floodplain activities.

Myron ("Doc") Etienne, a Salinas attorney representing Stuyvesant Fish and Bernice Leoni, major property owners in the area of the Carmel River floodplain, suggested that the ordinance be amended to allow development within the specified 200-foot setback in certain cases.

"As written, this ordinance would preclude any development along that 200-foot stretch," Etienne said. "Mrs. Leoni has been endeavoring to obtain a subdivision. I feel it would be fairer to look at the public interest rather than just knocking out the 200 feet.

"Many times, property owners, acting in their own interest, have removed vegetation from the river area. There's no agency that's going to do this, and I don't think you ought to preclude this. I can see some serious problems."

When queried by Supervisor Peters as to whether he supported amendment of the ordinance to allow a variance procedure, Etienne replied: "Sure."

Prohibited in the ordinance, except in narrowly-defined cases where special permits may be issued, are:

- Development within 200 feet of the river banks, or in the floodway or riparian corridor.
- Alteration of the living riparian vegetation by removal, thinning, or other means.
- Construction or alteration of levees, or the placement of fill material in the floodway or riparian corridor.
- Any alteration of the natural course of the river or its banks.
- Any dredging of, or removal of, natural materials from the river channels or banks.

Any owner of a legal lot of record would be permitted to construct a single-family dwelling with a use permit. The ordinance exempts those projects for which all permits have been approved and are in effect when the measure is passed.

•

PROPOSED NEW REGULATIONS in the ordinance would also require use permits for alteration of the riparian vegetation, building within the floodway, riparian corridor, or within 200 feet of the river, as well as any alteration of the river course or its banks and levees.

Emergency river bank protection or channel modification measures are exempted from the use permit requirements, after an emergency has been declared by the county flood control engineer.

The question of what is an "emergency" was also raised during the public hearing.

"The definition of what an 'emergency' is should be more clearly defined," said Rich Hughett, a Monterey city councilman and spokesman for the Carmel River Watch. "I agree we need an ordinance, but I'm more concerned about the stage this is in now. Riparian growth thinning will very often stimulate (plant) root growth, and I'd hate to see a situation where that couldn't be done."

Carl Hooper, an engineer with Bestor and Co. of Monterey, pointed out that dense vegetation along the river bed and banks can cause retardation of river flow, which can produce flooding.

"The water can be slowed to only half its velocity, and the only solution is that the water rises and floods, and causes more damage," Hooper said. "And the only solution to that is to trim the vegetation and permit the river to move at its normal velocity."

Supervisor Peters asked whether a special permit process could be used to allow a land maintenance program, such as that operated by Rancho Canada Golf Club, to satisfy conditions of the proposed ordinance. County Planning Director Ed DeMars replied that land maintenance programs could be included in the revised ordinance through the special permit process.

•

IN A LETTER to the Board of Supervisors, the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association voiced support for the ordinance, with the following stipulations:

- That the ordinance specifically state that it is an "interim measure" to be modified later when the Carmel Valley master plan is revised.
- That the term "riparian" corridor be dropped from the ordinance as vague and meaningless.
- That the term "floodway fringe" is confusing and should be replaced by the term "floodway" throughout the ordinance.
- That conservation programs supervised by the Monterey Peninsula Parks District or by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District be exempted from the prohibition against alteration of the living riparian vegetation.
- That the $500 daily penalty be modified to a civil, rather than a criminal, misdemeanor.

BILL KLECH of Carmel Valley implored the supervisors to include in the ordinance some method for preservation of the county bridges which span the Carmel River. Klech said he is particularly concerned about the Boronda Bridge, which he said serves some 200 families in the vicinity.

"We who live on the river are most anxious to get an ordinance approved for the protection of the river," said Stanley Worth of Carmel Valley, whose property is directly adjacent to the river.

"It's a very good ordinance as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough," said Virginia Merz of Carmel. "It doesn't go far enough west of Rancho Canada. I suggest you consider including that area."

Supervisor Peters, whose request for board support to seek legislation designating the Carmel River as a protected waterway was approved, said the idea of allowing variances in the ordinance was as good one.

"There ought to be a specific permit for land management plans," Peters said. "We want management plans which upgrade and restore."

"They want to tie up $37.5 million of Carmel Valley in a floodplain"

Construction within 200 feet of the Carmel River would be banned if a new floodplain ordinance is adopted by the county.

BUILDING PERMIT reproduced here is one of the documents submitted by Paul Laub, owner of Paradise Mall, in his lawsuit against the city of Carmel. The site dimension and area on the permit show 50 by 95 feet, the full coverage of the commercial building. However, the city contends that the permit, based on fees charged, covered remodeling of only half the building.

By BABS COROVESSIS

THE CITY OF CARMEL issued a "stop work" order to block Paradise Mall owner Paul Laub from dividing the western section of his store into more shops and ended up with a lawsuit on its hands.

After Building Inspector Ron Warren delivered the stop-work order Friday, May 29, Laub immediately had his attorney file a complaint for injunctive relief or writ of prohibition.

He received a temporary order from Superior Court Judge Richard M. Silver to quash the city's stop work order.

A hearing on the matter is set for 9:30 a.m. Friday, June 5 in the Monterey courthouse.

The city contends Laub's building permit only covered remodeling work on the eastern side of his building at Ocean and Dolores.

City Administrator Doug Peterson said that during the building plan review process, improvements to the western half of the store were stricken and the permit fee was negotiated only for half the work. The city claims the fee amount "is not large enough to cover additional work that was done on the building," Peterson said.

Carmel contends that Laub is in violation of its urgency ordinance, passed April 6, which slapped a four-month moratorium on subdividing retail space into small shops.

The moratorium was enacted in reaction to Laub's subsequent plans to turn Paradise into 14 retail spaces.

•

LAUB CONTENDS the permit was for the full remodeling work. He said work is virtually complete except for doors to be installed and inspection of electrical wiring.

The Carmel businessman said that the city building permit makes no mention of limitation on the remodeling, but that the city claims certain portions of the plans were "X'ed" out. However, Laub said such plans never were returned to him.

In his suit, Laub claims that prior to April 6, 1981, he devised a plan for the 10,000 square feet to be subdivided and subleased into "financially manageable portions for the benefit of small businesses in Carmel."

He noted that David Hughes, who previously leased the building, had gone bankrupt.

Laub contends any "concern" about the subdivision of his commerical space was not directly made to him, but at City Council meetings and subsequent newspaper coverage in The Pine Cone.

The suit against the city says that the city was "well aware of the fact that plaintiff had done everything legal and had, in fact, already obtained the necessary permits, consents and permission; thus they acknowledged that they were powerless to stop plaintiffs' 14-unit development; but that they were concerned and desired to avoid proliferation of such developments in Carmel."

Laub also claims that the City Council and Mayor "made wide and adverse publicity" about his development by calling it a "merchandise mart." The city claims such marts undermine the city's economic vitality.

He saide the city building department had "willfully, deliberately and maliciously" disregarded Laub's rights by ordering the stop work order.

Laub also said 12 of the 14 spaces have already been subleased and two remaining spaces are in final negotiation. He asked for a permanent injunction restraining the city from interfering with his commercial subdivision project.

Peterson said the city will declare that Laub is in violation of the moratorium by continuing work on the western side of the building.

CV Master Plan EIR ready

AN ENVIRONMENTAL impact report on the Carmel Valley Master Plan released this week identifies a dozen "unavoidable adverse impacts" from the projected development of 2,500 housing units over the next 20 years.

The EIR was prepared under a Monterey County Superior Court order after a legal challenge by the City of Carmel. The EIR, prepared by Sedway-Cooke of San Francisco, will now undergo a 30-day public review period.

During that time, the public is invited to comment on the adequacy of the EIR in addressing major issues in the master plan. The Monterey County Board of Supervisors is expected to schedule certification hearings in July.

After certification of the EIR, supervisors will then set the Valley master plan for public hearings and possible amendment based on the environmental review and public comment.

The board of supervisors on July 24, 1979 adopted a negative declaration on the Master Plan, stating that it would have no significant effect on the environment and therefore would not require preparation of an EIR.

On Jan. 15, 1980, the board of supervisors adopted the revised Carmel Valley Master Plan. The City of Carmel challenged that action with a Superior Court lawsuit immediately thereafter. The suit asserted that several revisions made in the Master Plan between adoption of the negative declaration and approval of the plan warranted preparation of a "focused" EIR.

And on June 5, 1980, Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver issued a writ of mandate ordering the supervisors to set aside their adoption of the revised Master Plan, and directing that a moratorium on discretionary building permits passed in 1979 remain in effect until final adoption of the Master Plan based on the EIR.

Preparation of the EIR was ordered by the supervisors on June 24, 1980, and on July 8, 1980, the building permit moratorium was extended until July 3, 1981.

•

LISTED IN the EIR as "unavoidable adverse impacts" stemming from the 2,500 housing units proposed in the master plan are:

- Increased exposure to seismic hazards, erosion and landslides.
- Degradation of groundwater and surface water quality.
- Reduced quality and functioning of biotic communities as habitat areas.
- Removal of viable agricultural land from production.
- Continuing loss of open space and reduction of scenic amenities.
- Increased traffic congestion and road safety hazards.
- Reduced air quality.
- Increased ambient noise levels.
- Increased demand for public services and facilities, particularly water service.
- Increased fire hazards, particularly through development on high hazard terrace areas.
- Increased consumption of energy.

"The Carmel Valley master plan initiates the commitment of significant portions of the Valley to urban uses for an essentially permanent period of time," the EIR concludes. "Grading and the construction of buildings are virtually irreversible uses of the land.

"Development under the plan will alter the visual quality of the Valley, reduce the supply of producing agricultural land and wildlife habitat, and result in irreversible damage to natural vegetation. However, until construction actually takes place, any map, plan or policy can be reversed by the legislative action of the board of supervisors."

•

A MORATORIUM on Valley development has been in effect since July 8, 1980 for discretionary projects which are deemed to have little or no effect on population density or building intensity. Preliminary subdivision maps are being accepted for environmental processing. Once the EIR is certified and the master plan is re-adopted by the supervisors, the moratorium will be lifted.

"We're concerned not just about the key points in the EIR, but also those things which are identified as mitigation measures," said Lynn Mounday, senior county environmental planner.

"Because a lot of what's in the master plan is land use policy, changes that are recommended in the EIR would come out as policy changes. After the public and staff has reviewed the EIR, then we'll know what kind of things we'll recommend to the board of supervisors before they adopt it.

"Then it will be up to the board based on the information they get from the EIR and from us and the public as to whether they scale the master plan up or down."

One consideration will be whether the Odello property is deemed to be located in the Carmel Valley master plan area, Mounday said.

"Although the objective of the (Carmel Valley) master plan is to control growth in the valley, growth inducement will result from its implementation," the EIR states. "The increase in population will be intensified by the high disposable income of these new Valley residents. Some of the employment opportunities generated will be taken by currently unemployed people living in the area, but new service workers will also be attracted to the area.

"Increased service employee population and decreased local unemployment levels will produce an economic multiplier effect, resulting in secondary growth-inducing effects in the service sector. Since housing prices in Carmel Valley will be beyond the means of these new service employees, pressures for residential development will be induced elsewhere in the Monterey Peninsula."

Other growth-inducing effects in the Valley master plan identified in the EIR in-

Cops will have their hands --er, full Sunday

By BABS COROVESSIS

WANNA ROB A BANK or park overtime?

Try this Sunday, June 7 at 2 p.m.

The Carmel Police Department won't be around—they'll be busy taking on the good guys—er uh, that is, the good girls. I mean the Women...

The police will take on the Foxtails, the all-female team that won the Monterey Softball Socko League title last year.

Sexist Sgt. Jerry Pullen, who has lived for 30 peaceful years in the city of Carmel, is coach for the cops, and admits he may have to move away if his team doesn't come through.

The sexist/feminist bit is a gimmick to raise funds to support Carmel Youth Baseball and the 340 young people from age 8-16 who participate in it.

The game will be played at 2 p.m. at the Carmel Youth Baseball field on Rio Road at the Mission. Donations for the event are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

However, persons may purchase as many tickets as they wish at the gate. Each ticket gives you a chance to win one of 30 prizes donated by Carmel merchants to support Carmel Youth Baseball.

Drawings for prizes will be drawn throughout the game. The winning ticket holders must be present to win.

Prizes include dinners for two at a number of Carmel restaurants, a case of fruit, a radio, liquor, jellybeans, and other goodies.

•

THE POLICE TEAM is being billed as "a highly skilled, expertly coached, professional team, that shows no mercy." Guess who wrote the announcement?...

Pullen also termed the Foxtails as "an unknown, all girls team?? Pleasing to the eye, but short on skill, lacking the qualities to beat the PD."

Polishing his gun, which he forgot to take out of its holster, Pullen recalled, "This is the second game. For anyone who attended the first game, it was not a pretty sight."

"The Foxtails were soundly thrashed and were sent home with their tails tucked between their legs.

"After that game, they realized that their place was in the home, washing, cooking, cleaning, and changing diapers. This year's game will be just as embarrassing for the Foxtails," Pullen added.

Foxtail Coach Doug De George is undaunted by such remarks. He admits he hasn't taught his girls to throw a curve ball, but, as he points out, they have enough curves of their own, anyway.

Will the real score of last year's game please stand up?

The Foxtails say it was 13 to 9, in favor of the police, whom they say cheated. The police claim the true score was a sound 16 to 9, even with police batting opposite-handed.

Pullen claims he doesn't even know his team is even practicing. "We're coordinated and work together beautifully. But, we know it's to benefit a worthy cause. Besides, it'll be good practice for the Foxtails, 'cause I understand they need quite a bit of practice..." Pullen added.

Also on hand for the event will be photographer Don Fuselier, and the PD's silver-tongued devil, Marius "Batwings" Crison.

Three of the Foxtails, on hand for the promotional photograph, informed Pullen last year's win by the PD had dubious doings.

"You cheated. You had the firemen play with you," they claimed.

"She's very articulate," Pullen countered.

Police and relatives and friends on their team are Bill and Betty Uretsky, Jerry and Karen Pullen, Chief Bill Ellis, Capt. Bob Fischer, Dan Clark and Jody Spallino, Steve and Carl Rana, Terry Lacoma, Debbie Williams and Kevin Roberts.

Pullen said, just to play it safe, the PD "probably will bring out a secret weapon this year."

Foxtail Coach De George predicted, "It will be impossible for the PD to win this year because the fire department won't be there this time."

Umpires so far are Ron Meredith and Tom Pullen (yes, brother of the PD coach). McGeorge then volunteered to be another umpire "to keep it all in all in the family."

•

THE FOXTAILS, aware that chauvinism and sexist remnants still exist in certain places, have a resource of their own in case they happen to lose again this year. The husband of one of the Foxtail players will be there—he was a linebacker for the '49ers...

Deborah Knippa of the Foxtails isn't worried. "We have our own secret weapon," she smiles, spraying some sinful solvent behind each ear.

The Foxtail coach, in a moment of seriousness, asked Pullen: "Is it true that you guys intend to use the parking officer scooters to get to first base?"

"No. But we could crawl there by the time your girls picked up the ball and threw it," said Pullen.

De George considered filing a complaint. He said the PD has been spotting spying while his girls are practicing for the game. "They keep saying they're setting up radar when we catch them, but you know that's not true."

Chief Ellis was asked who will protect our fair city of Carmel-by-the-Sea on Sunday afternoon. What if there were a bank robbery?

Unperturbed, Ellis retorted: 'No problem. We have a city ordinance prohibiting bank robberies while the game is in session."

BATTLE OF THE SEXES will take the form of a softball game Sunday, June 7 at 2 p.m. to raise funds for Carmel Youth Baseball at the field by the Mission on Rio Road. The all-women team of the Foxtails will take on the Carmel Police Department to test whether it's a man's world and/or a woman's after all. Resorting to handcuffs, bats, and frying pans and wrapped with tickets to sell are Dianna Minorini, Police Chief Bill Ellis handcuffed to Capt. Bob Fischer with the help of Deborah Knippa and Officer Steve Rana. Behind them are Jo Anne Johnson and Sgt. Jerry Pullen.

Water board to weigh standby rationing plan

A standby water rationing plan for the Monterey Peninsula will be considered when the board of directors of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District meets at 7:30 p.m., Monday, June 8 at Monterey City Council chambers.

The ordinance to establish the standby rationing plan was presented in a public hearing May 11 and has been revised to reflect public and board concerns.

In the new language of the proposed ordinance, the board would have discretion to determine the exact amount of water to be rationed to residences and businesses.

The board also will hear two applications for annexations to the California-American Water Co. service area, and will discuss use of various techniques for the protection of ground water from septic contamination.

The board is also scheduled to discuss the proposed floodplain ordinance for the Carmel River now being drafted by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

Council to hear about mini-bus system Monday

More data on a proposed mini-bus system for Carmel will be presented to the City Council when it meets Monday, June 8 in City Hall at 7:30 p.m.

The city has received $50,000 funding from the County Transportation Commission to study the feasibility of a mini-bus system. City Administrator Doug Peterson will present guidelines for the study.

■ The Council also is expected to approve a 10-year-extension (with modifications) to the trash collection franchise, which will include a rate increase for the service.

■ A report from the Carmel Planning Commission recommending that the city maintain a six-foot height for fences will be considered.

■ Toland Doud, owner of the Doud Arcade, will appeal the Planning Commission denial for installation of safety lighting and an 18-inch decorative waterfall outside his property on San Carlos south of Ocean.

Patterson gives city 4,592 square feet of beachfront land

By BABS COROVESSIS

BUSINESSMAN Jack Patterson dangled a "carrot" in the form of 4,592 square feet of beachfront property deeded unconditionally to the city of Carmel Monday night, and the City Council bit and unanimously accepted his offer.

With that, Patterson, noted for his eleventh-hour surprising offers, may have ended his 10-year on-going battle with Carmel for the right to build four houses on his beachfront property on the north side of Ocean Avenue between San Antonio and the beach.

Patterson's attorney, Don Hubbard, presented City Administrator Doug Peterson with a letter and signed deed to a pie-shaped wedge of property across the beach, noting that "the gift is unconditional."

According to an appraisal by Harold M. Samuelson, the property was said to be valued at $450,000. Samuelson was hired by Patterson.

The land encompasses approximately 12 percent of the total 33,000-square foot property and represents more than 50 percent of the area proposed by both the Regional and California Coastal Commission to be dedicated to public recreational and open space use.

City Attorney George Brehmer, when asked if he could see any discernible "downside" to accepting the gift, said "no."

Councilman Mike Brown, while calling Patterson's move a "wonderful offer," still cautioned the Council to postpone acceptance of the offer by one week in order to have Councilwoman Helen Arnold present for the vote.

He also said it would be worthwhile to check with the California Coastal Commission on whether the Commission would change its position in wanting twice the amount dedicated for open space and public use.

Hubbard argued that while the offer remained open for a week, "it still isn't completed until it is accepted." He then said if Patterson happened to die, it would nullify the offer.

"If somebody offered me $450,000, I wouldn't have to think it over for a week," Hubbard said.

At that, the Council then voted unanimously to accept the land offer.

The Council then moved to a public hearing on the Carmel LCP. It was approved except for the portions related to the setback and beachfront dedication on Patterson and Del Mar properties. In both instances, the state wants more setbacks, and in addition an easement and 50-foot dedication across the west side of Patterson's property.

Councilman Howard Brunn said the LCP squabble over the Patterson property had gone on long enough, and recommended that the city approve what Brehmer calls "a plan with a white hole in it." The hole is the city/state differences on the Patterson/Del Mar properties.

Mayor Barney Laiolo urged the Council to accept the LCP, with those two exceptions "and let the matter be closed with the city and the state. Drop it. We've gone on for hours and hours and hours," Laiolo said.

He proposed that the Council adopt all aspects of the LCP except for the Patterson property. "Then let Patterson take it from there," Laiolo said.

Councilman Brown noted that the Council had already accepted the LCP, and that was not at issue. "But we need to get additional input from the state. We need to see the ramifications on how the state interprets it (Patterson's land offer to the city)."

While Patterson's deed of a portion of land to the city may assist his case with the state, it remains to be seen whether the California Coastal Commission will insist on the full 50-foot beachfront dedication, or will agree to a compromise now that Patterson and the city of Carmel have come to an agreement.

Any construction on the remainder of Patterson's property (four lots) still requires regular channels for city building permits and possibly design study by the Planning Commission on architectural plans.

Despite Brown's objections on a quick vote, Brunn countered, "This is the time to get the city of Carmel out of this and let the state of California carry the ball. Let them negotiate with Mr. Patterson. Let's get out of the middle. We're the stopgap," Brunn added.

Councilman Frank Lloyd said he wanted it noted for the record that Patterson's gift to the city in no way sets an established or equivalent value on the remainder of the property just because of Patterson's appraisal of the parcel deeded to the city.

The Council then voted 3 to 1 (with Brown voting no) to accept the LCP it has favored all along, with exception of the Patterson property.

Attorney Brehmer said that the city in effect will own one half of the property which the state wants dedicated for public use.

IN OTHER ACTION, the Council:

■ Postponed action on an ordinance controlling display cases and placing them under use permit regulations. The Council agreed to let the Carmel Business Association attempt to regulate them and deal with apparent abuses by some, with Council to review the issue in six months.

■ Unanimously approved an urgency ordinance extending the moratorium for one year to prohibit sale of time-sharing units in Carmel. Within 90 days the Planning Commission expects to have a regulatory ordinance to present to the City Council.

■ Appointed City Administrator Doug Peterson to meet with residents still complaining of tour buses going off their assigned routes. The recommendation was then expanded to have it referred for study by the Traffic Committee.

■ Heard a complaint by a resident opposing the "blue monstrosities" — portable toilet facilities in the library parking lot. He urged the city to "do something" to provide for tourists. Acting Librarian Peg Richter said the library cannot open its bathrooms to tourists due to plumbing that dates from 1927 and maintenance problems.

■ Agreed to draft a policy which would allow the City Council to appoint the person receiving the third highest votes to a Council vacancy if a Councilman's seat was vacated by his being elected mayor. But to comply with state law, Brehmer said the person appointed (in April) would then have to run for re-election to maintain the position in the following November general election, giving the person an eight-month term before running again.

■ Delayed for another week appointments to the Carmel Planning commission, on grounds that Councilwoman Helen Arnold was out of town.

■ Discussed a variety of ways to make Carmel's July 4 beachfront celebration safer with minimal property destruction and litter.

■ Authorized the Forestry Commission to select a landscape architect or designer to develop plans for Piccadilly Nursery. All voted for the measure except Laiolo, who maintained the project will involve "constant maintenance till hell freezes over and a lot of dollars and time."

■ Authorized application for $1,195 for state park funds to improve the north side of Ocean Avenue.

■ Two ordinances — regulating interior malls and signs inside interior malls — both were passed on second reading.

Library submits budget

Harrison Memorial Library has submitted a preliminary budget of $439,144 to the city for its 1981-82 fiscal year.

The figure marks a $60,000 increase over last year's adopted budget of $385,190. Primary factors in the increase are salary increases, and substantial increases in the price of books.

During its June 26 meeting, the Library Board agreed to ask City Administrator Doug Peterson to serve as a representative for the board and City Council regarding negotiations for salaries and benefits for city and library employees.

Granite may intensify mining at Pico Blanco

GRANITE ROCK CO. may soon be able to step up mining of limestone on seven acres of U.S. Forest Service land on Pico Blanco mountain south of Carmel.

The Forest Service has accepted, with modifications, a Granite Rock plan which will enable the company to increase its limestone removal from 2,500 tons annually to as much as 32,000 tons per year within the next five years.

The only hurdle still facing Granite Rock is the Central Coast Regional Coastal Commission, which is weighing the scope of its jurisdiction and whether it can force the Watsonville-based firm to seek a permit for its operations.

"They might start increased mining in a couple of weeks," said Paul Thomas, range and wildlife specialist with the Forest Service in King City. Under the 1872 Federal Mining Act, the Forest Service can not prohibit Granite from mining, but can attach conditions to lessen surface effects.

Granite Rock has been exploring the extent and quality of limestone deposits on Forest Service lands and on their adjacent, privately-owned portion of Pico Blanco since 1962. The mining plan recently accepted by the Forest service is a five-year proposal to determine economic feasibility for larger scale mining over the subsequent 25 to 45 years.

Although Pico Blanco, a prominent feature of the rugged Big Sur coastline, is within the jurisdiction of the Coastal Commission, Granite Rock has neither applied for nor been granted a permit for increased mining operations.

"The only issue is whether Granite Rock must get a coastal permit to do mining on federal land," said Lee Otter, planner with the regional coastal agency. "The Coastal Commission asserts that Granite Rock ought to get a permit. They haven't applied for one, but we haven't pushed our case because we want to be certain of our legal ground.

"We think we do have jurisdiction. The next step for us would be to issue a stop work order, if we go that way."

Repeated unanswered telephone calls were made to Granite Rock engineer Ray Johnson and president Bruce Woolpert in an effort to ascertain the company's schedule for increased mining activity at the site.

GRANITE ROCK purchased the mountain in 1963 and owns land and mining claims covering 2,800 acres around the promontory. A separate but related issue is limestone mining on Granite holdings not within federal lands, which figures prominently in the Big Sur Local Coastal Plan.

Once the Big Sur LCP is approved by the Coastal Commission and returned to Monterey County to serve as a land use guide for the area, planning jurisdiction will be returned to the county, and that is where Pico Blanco mining operations may be blocked.

Of foremost concern to county officials is how Granite Rock plans safely to transport large volumes of limestone over county roads and Highway 1. Other concerns are scarring of the viewshed, the low priority status of mining in the Coastal Act, and potential contamination of the Little Sur River.

In the Forest Service environmental assessment of Granite's plans for increased limestone mining, it was found that "the existing road system on Forest Service land is sufficient" to handle removal of up to 32,000 tons of limestone ore per year.

Under the plan of operation accepted by the Forest Service, Granite Rock will be required to designate a 40-foot-by-125-foot-by-125-foot area for a disposal site, which is to be landscaped to duplicate existing land forms with native vegetation.

When spoils materials at the disposal site reach the elevation of the existing road at the Pico Blanco site, the site will be used for temporary storage of mining waste, which eventually is to be placed against the mine face after excavation is completed.

The Forest Service will require Granite Rock to mulch and seed the mining waste with grasses selected by agency foresters. Water lines are to be laid on the ground in sheltered ravines to control dust during excavation, and must be removed at completion of the project.

Granite Rock also will be required to prepare a road maintenance plan applying to the haul road between the quarry and Forest Service roads. And at the conclusion of mining, Granite is required to seed and water the roads in an effort to restore them to Forest Service standards.

The Forest Service plan also requires Granite Rock to close Pico Blanco Camp and the Little Sur Trail one-half hour prior to blasting, one-fourth mile above and below the blast site, and certify that no one is in the blasting area.

The trail and camp will be re-opened for public use after a Granite Rock representative has walked the area and certified in writing that no hazards exist. In its environmental assessment, the Forest Service found no evidence of archaeological significance at the Pico Blanco site.

Doud to appeal on lighting

By BABS COROVESSIS

THE OWNER OF THE Doud Craft Center on San Carlos near Ocean has appealed his request for exterior lighting and a decorative waterfall to the City Council after the Planning Commission turned him down May 20.

Toland Doud was to have taken the matter to the Council at its June 1 meeting.

The Commission, in a split vote, denied Doud's request for the extra lighting on grounds that the area already is "brilliantly lighted."

Doud asked from some 15 "low key" lights for safety in the area of stairs and also for soft lighting around the waterfall planter box in front of the San Carlos entrance.

Chairman Bob Stephenson opposed the waterfall idea. Even though the building was constructed before new planning regulations were in effect, he said, it would not come up to code requirements now required for landscaping.

Commissioner John Logan also objected "I have a feeling in a year Carmel may have a water problem and you may have to turn off your waterfall."

•

STEPHENSON SAID a study of waterfalls as part of building decor in Carmel shows they had a history of "getting filled in." He said he would rather see live plants in the area.

Commissioner Donald Davidson recommended that the commission attach a condition that if the waterfall was subsequently non-functional, it would have to be filled in with live plants.

Commissioner Sandy Swain complained about the lighting request, saying, "that's a busy, busy corner — it lights up the whole block of San Carlos. To me aesthetically it is jarring. It's too much," she said.

Davidson said: "You sound like me when I was talking about the corner of San Carlos and Seventh (Nielsen's Market and mapboard). And I couldn't get any support for that from the Commission."

Davidson argued that the lighting request was minimal — a total of 15 small lights totaling 280 watts in all.

•

COMMISSIONER Arthur Mertens said he "questioned if lights are really needed. The whole place is well lit."

Miss Swain interjected, "and water is not the only thing we're going to be in short supply of here soon."

Stephenson said with street lights and the brightly lit Nautilus shop window, "it's a brilliantly lighted area."

Davidson moved to accept the lights, but Stephenson warned: "I think we're setting a precedent for too much light in the commercial area."

The motion for 15 small lights was turned down five to two.

An alternative motion allowing a lesser number (four) near the stairs was approved by a majority of the Commission, but the waterfall request was denied.

■ In other action the Commission approved a request for exterior lighting for Carmel Resort Inn and also approved six sign requests for the following: Flaherty's Seafood Grill, Joan Winters Boutique, Doran & Associates, Carmel Copy, Thomas Houston Goldsmith, and Jewels of Carmel.

■ A sign request by Dee's Sunglasses Shoppe was denied and a sign request by Expressions in Gold was continued pending the commission viewing the sign.

■ Sitting as the Board of Adjustments, the Commission allowed three requests for variances to Jo Brazell, R.A. Williams, and Marion Shefik.

Parents rally to preserve neighborhood schools

A DETERMINED GROUP of Carmel parents is forming a committee to preserve neighborhood schools.

Faced with declining enrollment and funding reductions, the Carmel United School District is considering the possible closing of one or more schools.

The Advisory Committee on School Facilities has been studying the district's plight for several months, and has held a series of neighborhood meetings to solicit comment from parents.

The district must also trim between $300,000 and $400,000 from its $6 million budget by next year.

"If you close one of the neighborhood schools, you're talking about saving $35,000 to $45,000," said Larry Morago, unofficial organizer of the committee.

"Out of a $6 million budget, that amount is not going to do the cutting that needs to be done. We feel that's not the way to go. You've got to base whatever you do on educational philosophy first."

Morago was chairman of a committee which studied the same problem two years ago and recommended retention of the neighborhood school.

A leaflet bannered "Neighborhood Schools Do It Better," bearing Morago's name and telephone number, was circulated at the Carmel Woods School May Festival recently.

"We're putting together a group of people from the various schools in the district who feel there are alternatives to closing one of our elementary schools," Morago said.

A STUDY OF ENROLLMENT by the advisory committee predicts that the number of students in the district will decrease to only 1,723 by 1985-86, compared with 3,148 in the 1974-75 school year.

The lowered birth rate, high cost of housing in the Carmel area, and the replacement of families with children by older, childless couples are the primary reasons for the declining enrollment.

The district also has been hit with a double blow by the effects of tax revenue reductions from Prop. 13, as well as by implementation of the Serrano-Priest decision, which reduced state aid to relatively wealthy districts such as Carmel.

Some of the alternatives proposed by the committee include maintaining the status quo; realigning or eliminating elementary school attendance boundaries; closing one or two elementary schools; closing Middle School and changing elementary schools to K-8; closing Carmelo, River, and Woods schools and changing Middle School to K-8; closing Carmel High School and moving students to Middle School with elementary schools becoming K-8; closing the high school, expanding Middle School to 7-12 and maintaining three of five elementary schools.

Supt. Bill Rand said the committee which studied possible school closings two years ago only focused on small schools, and did not take into account all the schools of the district, which the present advisory committee has done.

"The question is still being studied because we still have declining enrollment which will continue to decline," Rand explained. "The scope of this committee's task is much broader."

Morago believes only major cutbacks should be used to justify any change in the use of school facilities.

"If we can't cut funds anywhere else, we've got to talk about bigger cuts," Morago said. "We're talking about something other than closing one or two elementary schools. Any savings should be on the order of $200,000-plus for a change of this type."

Some of the alternatives which Morago's committee will consider recommending to the board of education include increasing the bus fees (a proposal which was considered by the board at its Tuesday meeting); cutting back on elective subjects in favor of more basics; and changing the elementary schools to K-8 and closing the Middle School.

"The unanimous decision of the committee two years ago was that the savings would be so minimal that we recommended not closing the neighborhood schools," Morago said. "But it seems like there's a lot more talk of closing schools being the answer."

clude potential expansion of visitor accommodation units in the Valley.

"Although the plan does stipulate that a maximum of 300 visitor units are to be built east of Via Mallorca, no upper limit is set for the lower valley, where applications for a total of 500 hotel rooms are currently pending," the EIR notes.

And the provision of roads and sewage facilities for development projects, such as the Odello Ranch, would also have growth-inducing effects throughout the Valley, the report states.

"A failure of groundwater resources would also add impetus to plans for a new dam upstream. The increased water supplies by a new reservoir would facilitate further growth in the Valley and elsewhere.

"While the sewer and reservoir solutions are not certain to arise from Carmel Valley growth, if they are required at some future time, their growth-inducing effects will be directly attributable to the implementation of the Carmel Valley master plan."

Monterey Baking Co. to open on Ocean Avenue

By FLORENCE MASON

MONTEREY BAKING CO.—maker of those delicious French breads and rolls — is coming to Carmel!

The firm is going to open a retail outlet right here on Ocean Avenue, where Vanity Fair used to be (the south side of Ocean between Lincoln and Monte Verde).

More news: There will be some new products to entice us — a line of mousses, cheesecakes and croissants. They are going all-out with the latter and will offer filled dessert croissants and something very new — lunch croissants filled with such combinations as ham and cheese, spinach and cheese. The present Seaside wholesale bakery will continue to supply sweet and sour loaves to Peninsula grocery stores, but the new lines will be found exclusively at the Carmel outlet for the present.

In order to take advantage of Carmel's busiest season, owners Ron Garren, M.D. and Scott Hennessy hope to open the new store early in July. For the first few months, most of the basic baking will be done at the Seaside plant and the products will be finished in Carmel. However, plans are that eventually most of the baking for the Carmel store will be done right on these premises.

This new outlet will open before the company's already announced store in the new Crossroads development off Rio Road. It's beginning to look like a pattern — with Flaherty's Fish Market and Oyster Bar also planning a second location in the popular Crossroads area!

TABLE SETTINGS with a difference! The difference is that the wares of Carmel antique dealers as well as the talents of local interior decorators will be displayed at Sunset Center this weekend. Different, too, is the use to which funds raised by the presentaton of 12 table settings will be put: local conservation and landscaping projects right in the Carmel area.

The dates are Friday, Saturday and Sunday (June 5, 6 and 7) from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day. The place: the Bingham and Chapman rooms at Sunset, and the adjoining terrace. It's all being brought about by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club; a first for this particular project.

Fourteen antique shops, specialty shops and interior decorators are participating. For example: La Fille Du Roi (San Carlos between Seventh and Eighth) will display Faience plates and ceramic animals from their collection of 18th and 19th century antiques imported directly from France; Pierre Deux (Ocean Avenue and Dolores) will decorate Sunset Center's terrace with French country printed tablecloths, baskets and topiary animals; interior decorator Helen Montgomery will do a breakfast vignette reproduction of an 18th century table.

"EXPANSION" is the word at the Carmel Country Spa, North Country Club Way in Carmel Valley. That is, if the owners are successful in their application for a use permit to expand the gym and upgrade and house the equipment for their Olympic-size pool and Jacuzzi.

Frances Buller, one of the owners of the spa — with her sister, Palma Cuppola, and Dr. Ruth Ray of Monterey — told me that the expansion request is due in part to their need to meet the increasing demand for massage. If the application is approved, they will provide space for three more masseuses, as well as the other improvements.

Dr. Ray, a specialist in obesity, nutrition and hypnosis, is one of the original owners of the seven-acre property in its present metamorphosis as a spa; the sisters have been involved since March 1979.

THE AD CAUGHT my eye: "185 acres upper Carmel Valley — own the 'town' of Jamesburg!"

There may not be a town of Jamesburg, as such, but that is the name by which many people know the area. It is also known as the location of Tassajara Hot Springs and of the Jamesburg School. The school is private, meeting now in various homes but hoping to raise enough money to have their own buildings. To this end, its supporters stage an annual theatre benefit at Hidden Valley.

The property that is for sale surrounds the small homes where people connected with the hot springs live. It is owned by a firm — West by Southwest — whose local partner is Frank Koucky, a resident of Via La Gitana in Carmel Valley.

If you are looking for a lot of space, some of which could make fine vineyards, or a subdivision, Jamesburg could be ours!

Roger Cabanel sold their store and teaching center in Pacific Grove, which still carries the same name.

The restaurant not only will serve their purpose for the proposed TV program, it is also a place where they can present menus from a cookbook — also titled Vive La Difference — they are re-doing.

The restaurant seats up to 92 guests and offers room for private parties and banquets. It is open every day except Wednesday from 10 a.m. (for Continental breakfast) to 10 p.m. Pastries "to go" are available.

Mrs. McGregor, whose delightful French accent belongs, no doubt, to her first name rather than her last, told me that a trial television program is being prepared. It will be presented to local channels with the hope that it will be on the air by the end of June. The plan is also to put the programs on videotape and cassettes for schools and colleges.

And if that's not enough activity for one person (or four!), Mrs. McGregor continues to teach at Vive La Difference in Pacific Grove, "on demand."

WHAT'S IN A name? (continued): After several tries, the owners of the Carmel Kitchen, in Carmel Plaza, have come up with a name that is acceptable to the Business License and Code Review Board. But even "Village Coffee Shop" raised some questions. A possible conflict with the Village Corner restaurant was the board's chief concern. In the final vote for approval, board member Sandy Swain cast a negative. "I can't go along with this," she said. 'It's an infringement on a business that has been here for many years; it's too much the same." The majority approved, however, citing the difference between "coffee shop" and "restaurant," and the fact that there are a number of other businesses using the word "village" in their names.

PAUL ALLEN, owner of Spencer's stationery store, injected a bit of humor when he approached the board about the possibly conflicting names of his original store on Ocean and his new gift shop in the Plaza.

Allen suggested Spencer's-Carmel Stationery and Art Supply (or simply, Spencer's Stationery) for the Ocean Avenue location. Said he, "It's better than 'Eggs, burgers and stationery!' " The reference was to an earlier application by Carmel Kitchen's owners...

The board approved Allen's application, the name and location being sufficiently distinctive from Spencer's in the Plaza.

That Spencer's has been here a long time also helped Allen's cause. As one member of the board said, "We might deal differently with a new business."

•

THE NEW OWNERS of the Surftides Inn (Mission and Fifth) raised no such questions when they applied for a new business license. Randolph Bills appeared before the board, representing himself, Howard Watts and Rudolph Scholz. For the present, at least, they do not plan to make any radical changes and the name will remain the same. Some refurbishing is scheduled when they take over early in July, and the installation of an alarm system now required by the state.

The number of units at the Surftides — 16 plus one manager's apartment — is maximum for this location. In fact, it is more than would be allowed if the buildings had been put up after new regulations were developed.

GOOD NEWS for window shoppers specializing in art! Around July 1, the Atelier Galerie will open on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth where Swanson's Gallery had been. It's a move for owners Maurits Lissaur, Sam Ehrenberg and associates, presently located in Del Dono Court.

A few changes will be in order, including some movable modules and a new electrical outlet (the gallery had been a stockbrokers' office at one time and wires and cables from that period are still there). They will abandon the present location as soon as the new one is ready.

IT'S A FIRST anniversary for Bloomers — in The Barnyard! That's the specialty shop that sells designer lingerie (yes — including bloomers), other intimate apparel and the French perfumes to accompany them.

When owner Judy Levine and her family moved out here from Florida about four years ago, "it was like a covered wagon trek." Not only did Mrs. Levine and her husband, Harry, decide — after a vacation visit to Carmel — to re-settle in the West; their two sons and their families trailed along as well.

Now Harry Levine and son Larry are operating a leather store — Hide Park, also in The Barnyard— while another son, Michael, has found his way into Dean Witter and Co. in Del Monte Center, where he is a vice president.

Bloomers and Hide Park can communicate with ease, as one is right over the other in the Santa Cruz barn.

Sewage, density to be studied closely in airport condo EIR

SEWAGE DISPOSAL problems and overall density will be scrutinized in an environmental impact report on the proposed 110-unit condominium project at the airport above Carmel Valley Village.

Monterey County Planning Commissioners have insisted that the board of supervisors, scheduled to consider the preparation of an EIR June 9 include those issues, as well as the possibility of retaining the 29.37-acre parcel as an airport.

Expressing their opposition to the cluster condominium project were members of the Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee ad hoc study group; the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association; the Regional Water Quality Control Board; and county planning commissioners themselves.

Supervisors turned thumbs down on preparation of an EIR for the project Feb. 3, but the Monterey County Counsel's Office ruled that action was improper. The developer, Gerald Barrick of Palo Alto, has re-filed the preliminary map for the project; issuance of the environmental report is now routine.

"The Board of Supervisors in effect denied the project," Jose Ramos of the county counsel's office explained to planning commissioners last Wednesday. "It was made clear by the board that their action (refusal to order an EIR) was a denial. But the board can't do that."

Jack Van Zander of Bestor Engineers, Monterey, said the applicant intends to address sewage disposal and density and other issues in the EIR. But he asserted that the existing Carmel Valley master plan would permit up to six units per acre, while the condo project plan envisions only three per acre.

"We want to be turned on to the process," Van Zander said. "The use of an airport in the middle of the village is a questionable use and is not profitable to the owner. Other alternatives to condominiums will be considered, but to get there we need an EIR."

•

PLANNING COMMISSIONER Joseph Sullivan of Salinas questioned the propriety of considering a project with apparently inadequate sewage disposal techniques and a high density.

"Mr. Van Zander is well aware of the policy of the health department regarding sewage, and then he brings in a proposal that he knows exceeds this," Sullivan protested. "He knows offhand that sewage is a problem, so I don't understand why sewage isn't addressed up-front in the preliminary map situation.

'This is such a ridiculous proposal that the odds are that it won't go through anyway. The density he's asked for is out of the question.'

"I don't understand why it would not be better to deny this as excessive for the area at this point, which would force the applicant to come in with a different proposal or some different arguments for this proposal," Sullivan said.

Commissioners received correspondence from Ken Jones, executive officer of the Regional Water Quality Control Board, recommending denial of the project because of its plan for a community septic tank system.

"The proposed density exceeds that recommended in the regional board's basin plan," Jones wrote. "Based on the little information provided, we continue to recommend denial of the project as proposed. Sufficient soil and hydrology information must be provided to justify a density between one-half and one acre per system. The map does not give the location of the sewage disposal system.

"A proposal utilizing a community septic tank system would require formation of a public entity responsible for operation and maintenance of the system, and submission of a report of waste discharge to this board."

John Caldwell, a member of the Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee ad hoc committee on the project, said the group will apply "all our political pressure" for rezoning of the property.

"The developer is in a Catch-22 position," Caldwell said. "He can't do anything without an EIR, and yet this is such a ridiculous proposal that the odds are that it won't go through anyway. The density he's asked for is out of the question. Our ad hoc committee has been talking about amending the zoning to one acre minimum.

"I feel for the developer, but this issue will be continued until the Carmel Valley master plan is redone."

Robert Greenwood, vice president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, told commissioners that the CVPOA recommends denial of the project.

"Carmel Valley Village is already approaching the limit of its capacity to absorb septic effluent, and there is concern about contamination of the Carmel Valley aquifer which is the source of water for the Monterey Peninsula," Greenwood said.

•

APPROVAL OF THE PROJECT as submitted would "put the lie" to two aspects of Carmel Valley Village, Michael Jones of the Valley told the commission. "It would raise the question of whether it's a village any more, and would threaten its rural atmosphere," Jones said.

"All these ideas about sewage are just a joke," he said. "This seems to be more of a scam. The guy owns an option and he's just shooting in the dark."

Dana Guzzetti of Carmel, representing the developer, said the EIR would answer the question of adequacy of the soil to handle various types of sewage treatment and disposal techniques.

"No one here is a soils expert that I know of," she said. "Soil borings on the property indicate that the sewage problem could be addressed in a variety of ways. Some alternative plans will be addressed in the EIR, and we will be able to have some facts to work with, not opinions. We just want an opportunity to come up with the facts."

Marvin Wolf, assistant county public works director, cautioned the planning commissioners about defining some sort of density limits.

"If this project goes ahead and this density continues, there ought to be some sort of scope as to what this means to the degradation of the water table, and consideration to a possible tie-in of all sewage units within the village."

Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon said the proposal is consistent with the new Carmel Valley master plan, which has been stalled by a lawsuit and is undergoing revision. The project is not, however, consistent with a density of 3.2 units per acre, Slimmon said. Current zoning would permit only about 30 units in the project, he added.

"This project should be clearly defined as to whether it is just a reclassificatioin of a subdivision map, or whether it is also an amendment to the general plan," said Ed DeMars, county planning director.

In recommending the preparation of an environmental impact report, planning commissioners stipulated that the document address the potential for a scaled-down project, alternative methods of sewage disposal, and the possible continued use of the parcel as an airport.

County can't do any more about safety at Carmelo

THE MONTEREY COUNTY Public Works Department is doing all it can to promote traffic safety along Carmel Valley Road at Carmelo and Middle schools, Monterey County Supervisors were informed last week.

Public Works Director Bruce McClain, in a letter to the supervisors, recommended that no changes be made in the present traffic control procedures in those areas. The letter was in reply to a request from Leonard Epstein of Carmel Valley that complained of speeding autos.

McClain disputed an assertion in Epstein's letter that two collisions involving school children had occurred during the previous year.

"Our records show that two collisions involving school children have occurred during the previous two years," McClain informed supervisors. "Both occurred at the Rio Vista crosswalk for Carmel Middle School and involve a pedestrian stepping from behind a vehicle that had stopped for them into the path of an approaching vehicle."

The Board of Education of the Carmel Unified School District, responding in part to protests by Epstein, agreed to send a personal representative to appear before the board of supervisors to seek some solution to high-speed traffic near the schools.

But the reply to Epstein's concerns came under the consent portion of the supervisor's meeting — a portion of the agenda which usually receives no comment, either from the board or from the public.

•

McCLAIN SAID the three elements of traffic safety, generally referred to as the "three E's," are engineering, enforcement, and education.

"Our department is constantly reviewing the road system for engineering features and making recommendations to the board (of supervisors) regarding application of the California Vehicle Code," McClain wrote.

"Both Carmelo and Carmel Middle School are signed in a consistent manner in accordance with the law and accepted practice. 'Twenty-Five Miles Per Hour Speed Limit When Children Are Present,' 'School Crossing,' and 'School Zone' signs are all present and visible to Carmel Valley Road traffic."

McClain pointed out that the California Highway Patrol is responsible for enforcement of traffic laws on Carmel Valley Road, where one officer is regularly assigned to patrol although "he cannot be in all places at all times.'

"We have recently received indications from the courts that there are a substantial number of citations along Carmel Valley Road, particularly in the vicinity of the schools," McClain wrote. "We feel that the enforcement effort should be commended, given the manpower allocations and financial position of the CHP."

The Highway Patrol is actively involved with safety education programs in the schools, McClain noted.

"The situation at both schools has been discussed at length with concerned parents, school officials, and patrol officers. The correctness of county action is well-documented," McClain said.

"We feel that most drivers are driving Carmel Valley Road sensibly. There are a number of irresponsible drivers and they are everyone's concern. Unfortunately, these drivers will cause problems no matter what type of traffic control device is used.

"It is vitally important that proper pedestrian behavior be stressed in order to compensate for this irresponsible element. Pedestrian training must include constantly impressing upon all pedestrians, particularly school children, the sense of impending hazard so that they may act cautiously. Caution may save their lives, regardless of driver behavior.

"This is a matter for the schools and the patrol. We recommend continuation of the present program of engineering, enforcement, and education as the means to minimize collision potential."

•

EPSTEIN SAID later that he was not satisfied with the county's response and plans to appear personally before supervisors, possibly with school officials.

"My feeling is that something more needs to be done," Epstein said. "I have every intention of following through within the next few weeks."

At an earlier school board meeting, Epstein said the board should ask the county to install more traffic signs or flashing lights, emphasizing that with continued development in the Valley, traffic conditions will worsen.

CV Ranch sewage disposal to be reviewed by supervisors

THE MONTEREY COUNTY Board of Supervisors will conduct a public hearing on an ordinance governing waste water facilities for the Carmel Valley Ranch development at 11 a.m. Tuesday, June 9.

The ordinance would be in effect in Zone 1 of the Carmel Valley Sanitation District. Companion ordinances to cover Zone 2 and Zone 3 in the district will also be heard.

The ordinance affecting the Carmel Valley Ranch would govern the treatment and discharge of sewage for the proposed 500-unit condominium development and 100-unit hotel and golf course.

Covered in the ordinance would be sewer connections, sewage permits, issuance of permits, performance bonds, use and ownership of building sewers, prohibited wastes, location of building sewers, building sewer construction, abandoned building sewers, grease interceptors, sewer service charges and user fees, and penalties for violations.

The developer of Carmel Valley Ranch has already installed a sewer system, and all existing 140 units have been connected. The ordinance would contract the operation and maintenance of the sewage system from the Carmel Valley Sanitary District to the owners of the Carmel Valley Ranch, explained Wayne Prevost of the county public works department.

The companion ordinance for Zone 2 would cover the Village Greens Development; the ordinance for Zone 3 would govern the White Oaks development.

■ Supervisors will also consider a request by property owners in the area of the Otter Cove subdivision south of Carmel for an exception to the viewshed policy contained in the Big Sur Local Coastal Plan.

The appeal is from seven property owners in the area who hope to build on their land but would be prohibited from doing so because of the draft Big Sur LCP. The viewshed policy precludes development of any parcels which would be visible from Highway 1.

The Big Sur LCP has been approved by the county and is under review by the Central Coast Regional Coastal Commission, which is expected to conduct hearings on the LCP late in June.

If supervisors approve the request, it would be forwarded to the Coastal Commission as an amendment to the Big Sur LCP.

DEBT-FREE HOUSE

Mr. Homeowner, does it make sense to strive for a paid-up mortgage as soon as possible? The so-called experts are divided down the middle on this question. So we'll cover the paid-up mortgage advocates today.

One of the prime motivations for buying homes is the view toward retirement. During that period, Social Security can, at best, act only as a supplement to living expenses. It will not pay for mortgage payments also. A paid-up mortgage in the later, less affluent years of life can give a family a great sense of security and well being.

On the strictly financial side, the larger the down payment, the more you will save on interest costs and the lower your monthly mortgage payments will be, leaving more cash for savings and other living expenses. Also, the more you have invested in your house, the more you can take out when you eventually sell.

Pine Whispers

The fog hangs in,

but parties still go on

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

TOURISTS MAY feel a bit dejected because our famous, misty fog is making its early summer appearance — drifting through the pines and giving the Village a mystical feeling.

And that same feeling is pervading the many elegant and outstanding social functions which continue at a rapid pace — including the lovely reception for Marsha Kading, our new principal at Carmel High; the Dewar affair; and the famous Nyman Cup. It all goes a bit like . . .

NEW CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPAL WELCOMED AT RECEPTION

MARSHA KADING, the new principal of Carmel High School, was honored at a reception in Leonard Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center last Thursday evening.

The festive affair was sponsored jointly by the Padre Parents and the Board of Trustees of the Carmel School District. Invited guests included all the employees of the Carmel Unified School District, high school parents, parents of children who will be attending Carmel High next year — from the Carmel Middle School, All Saints and Carmel Mission and many local personalities.

The room was beautifully decorated with massive floral arrangements (some over five feet high) by Joyce Lindgren who used flowers from her garden. Many of the arrangements were made to look like trees.

Beautiful bouquets were presented to Mrs. Kading and also to Mrs. William Rand, wife of the superintendent of schools.

A presentation was also made to Dan Stevenson, who is vacating his position to Mrs. Kading. The presentation to Dan was made by the American Field Service Carmel Chapter, in appreciation for all his efforts in their behalf.

Special entertainment was provided by 11-year-old Misha Rosenker who played the violin and was accompained by Bill Purdy, music teacher for the Carmel Unified School District.

Misha's parents, Michael and Kazuko, were obviously very proud of their son who has been playing the violin since the age of 4. It is interesting to note that his dad was a concertmaster with the New York Philharmonic and also with the Metropolitan Opera in New York.

Maureen Girard, president of the Padre Parents, welcomed the more than 250 guests at the door as they arrived. Mayor Barney and Elinor Laiolo were there as was Gary Lothe, a long-time teacher in Carmel.

Johnny Pott, golf pro at the Carmel Valley Ranch was there with his missus. Others included Mr. and Mrs. David Banks, Doyle and Sue Clayton, Mr. and Mrs. Crosby M. Crosby and Aileen Kelly, student body president of Carmel High.

Dan Stevenson, who was principal at Carmel High for the past seven years, said that he plans to attend the Monterey College of Law and also teach part-time somewhere in the district. He said he became interested in law during the last few years by being involved with collective bargaining with school district employees.

Guests were offered a variety of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, including cheese trays, fresh vegetables with dips, fresh fruits, Swedish meat balls, finger sandwiches and numerous other good things.

The two huge punch bowls looked very festive topped with a pineapple ice ring and scoops of lime sherbert. Coffee was also served.

One thing for sure — Marsha Kading was warmly welcomed to the community.

COCKTAIL RECEPTION FOR ARTS COUNCIL

THE WEATHER may have been gloomy but the local hospitality was outstanding — for members of the National Assembly of Community Arts Agencies National Conference in Monterey May 25-29.

One highlight of the event was the cocktail reception given by Rod and Sue Dewar in their beautiful Pebble Beach home (Abalone Hill) last Thursday evening.

The party was in honor of the board of directors, and many locals were on hand to greet and chat with this interesting group of people.

Since almost every state was represented at the affair everyone was obliged to don a name tag — and Sue's read "Charlie McCarthy," while Rod chose the name "Seiji Ozawa" (Seiji is the famous orchestra conductor who used to be conductor of the San Francisco Symphony and is now music director of the Boston Symphony).

Internationally famous people who were really there included Ansel Adams and Bella Lewitsky. Bella is, of course, the famous dancer who has her own dance company in Los Angeles. Ansel (who looks terrific) came with Jim and Mary Alinder . . . I'm sure that most of you know that Jim is the executive director of Friends of Photography.

Interesting to note that a pre-plan is being made for a Monterey County Arts Agency (private or public not yet decided) — and Jim is chairman of the ad-hoc committee.

Other interesting people making the conversation rounds included Bob Bailey, consultant to the Monterey County arts plan. Bob had to leave wife, Sally, behind in San Francisco, but she sent her 'hello's.'

Acting director Gretchen Wiest was there, as was conference coordinator Vivian McKidden. Bill Moskin (chairman of the conference) of Sacramento was seen chatting with a group from Santa Cruz including Hal and Perky Hyde, Yankee Johnson, Angelo and Beverly Grova and Bonnie Bernardi.

Another delightful gentleman was Marl Young, chairman of the California Arts Council (Marl is also secretary of the American Federation of Musicians Local 47 in Los Angeles) and William Cook, executive director of the California Arts Council.

Nationally known arts consultant Ralph Burgard of Scarsdale, N.Y. enjoyed the party and chatted with, among others, Joseph Golden of Syracuse, N.Y.

Just a few of the many locals welcoming the out-of-towners were Peter and Joyce Wright; Bob and Ilene Tuttle (she of the Monterey Conference Center Arts Commission); Monterey City Manager John Dunn and his lovely wife Shirley; Monterey County Supervisors Michal Moore and Bill Peters; Bob Abinante; Azile Johnston; Robert Scripture; and Dr. Gorden and Helen Kingsley of Salinas.

Another delightful couple attending the affair were Don and Shirley Jones of San Francisco. Don, of Chevron U.S.A., helped to sponsor the conference.

Along with all the chit-chat, guests enjoyed cocktails and an array of delicious hors d'oeuvres including potted shrimp on artichoke leaves and caviar pie.

Almost forgot to mention that Fred Farr (who was on the original California Arts Commission years ago) suggested to his son, Assemblyman Sam Farr, that it would be a great idea to take the members of the California Arts Council on a tour of Carmel's world famous Tor House — and that's exactly what Sam agreed to do.

Enough already!

TENNIS TOURNEY AND A BARBECUE

LEAVE IT TO Don Nyman of Carmel Valley to think up a fun idea — and he did it again with a happening called the "Second Annual Nyman Cup."

The tourney, held at the Carmel Valley Ranch, began rather late last Thursday evening, but the fog and dampness which drifted in didn't dampen the spirits of the participants — they just whacked the ball a bit harder.

Other players included Don, Carl Cardinalli, Melody Fletcher, John Ferrali, Judy Swaigen, Shell Fisher, Juli Hetherington and Joaquin Aiello.

While the matches were in progress, Butch Leppi tossed hamburgers and hot dogs on the grill and served them up with baked beans, potato salad, plenty of hot coffee and vino.

While munching on their food, Carl Cardinalli and Don decided that the next event on the schedule should be the Cardinalli Annual Fall Invitational. When? They're not quite sure — but they guarantee it will happen!

LISA IS BACK AT THE CANVAS

THERE'S NO GRASS growing under the busy feet of Lisa Bryan-Day these days. This lovely miss, who specializes in painting people's pets — especially horses — says she is spending more time at the easel as well as visiting many tracks, breeding farms and training stables.

Lisa is a bit of a world traveler, being born in England, living in Hong Kong for four years, another year in Hawaii and then traveling all over Europe. She has settled in Carmel for the past few years and spends part of her time working in the advertising field. She also owns her own horse and is an accomplished rider.

Lisa, who has a studio in her home, said that she has about 40 paintings almost finished and ready for a show.

"Each painting of someone's pet gives that special animal a permanence that in reality is so fleeting," said Lisa. "I feel such pride when someone tells me that even though their pet is gone they get enjoyment out of looking at their pet through my work."

STACIE CELEBRATED HER BIG 16TH

STACIE KELLEY'S 16th birthday was celebrated in style — and was quite a surprise thanks to her mom and dad, Dave and Patty Owens, sister Pam and brothers Mike and J.D.

Stacie had quite a few friends coming at her from all directions as they were given the cue to come out of hiding when the song "Celebration" was played on her new stereo (yep, a birthday present).

Refreshments like pizza bread, chips and dips, popcorn, punch and soft drinks were served — or should we say consumed!

Special thanks go to Kim and Roni Hastey for passing out invitations and to Carol and Michael Shearer for needing a babysitter for a couple of hours while the decorating was accomplished. And a special thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Kurz for letting Stacie's dad out of the Little League snack bar early so he could be in on the big surprise!

Next comes the big 18, Stacie!

IT'S A BOY

Ryan was born at Community Hospital on May 19.

Nielsen's map gets final approval from planners

The illustrated map board north of Nielsen's Market on San Carlos received final approval from the Carmel Planning Commission at its May 20 meeting.

The commission has expressed mixed feelings about the map and insisted on seeing details on the various sections of the map since it was started in January.

One of the artists, Carol Minou, said parts of the map had been changed to illustrate local events in Carmel.

Commissioner John Logan did not cast a vote.

CLARK STRUVE AND HIS wife, Toshia, proudly hold their three-week-old twin boys, Adam and Erik. They were not expecting twins. It was only after the doctor delivered the first baby did they realize another baby was waiting to be born. The Struves, who live in Carmel, have two other children.

They were expecting a baby... and got double trouble!

DOUBLE TROUBLE? No way. "You might say things get a bit hectic, but there's also a lot of happiness involved," agreed Clark and Toshia Struve of Carmel when talking about their three-week-old twin boys, Adam Wesley and Eric James.

When the Struves discovered they were about to become the parents of twins it was much too late to make preparations. Toshia said that the doctor had just delivered Adam and that her husband was preeming over the fact that after fathering two girls, Brittany, now 5, and Quincy, 3, he was now the father of a son.

"That's when the nurse discovered a hard lump in my stomach," said Toshia. "She asked the doctor if it were possible that there was another baby in there — and a few minutes later Erik arrived."

The twin boys are identical. The Struves say they can still tell them apart by the fact that Adam weighs one pound more then Erik, and therefore has a fatter face. During the interview though there was a constant query between the parents — "Which one do I have? Is this Erik? No, I think that's Adam."

•

TOSHIA SAID that the most frustrating thing about having twins is when they both cry at the same time. "When there are other children in the house and you have a new baby, you can just carry the new arrival around while caring for the other children," she explained. "But when there's two tiny ones crying for attention you do feel a bit helpless."

'whether you have one or more children the important thing is not money but love — plenty of love.'

Both Toshia and her husband are 35 years old and Toshia feels that having children later in life has a lot of advantages. They were married seven years before having their first child. "Now it seems there's no end to our ability to produce," laughed Toshia. "We both feel that we're more mature and more settled than we were in the early years of our marriage. We also own our home so there's not quite so much worry about how we're going to care for four children."

In answer to Toshia's feelings of security, Clark made an interesting comment. "I know a lot of people will disagree with me, but financial security isn't what's really important when it comes to having children," he said. "I know a lady who has 10 children and they're a beautiful family. So, in my opinion, whether you have one or more children the important thing is not money but love — plenty of love."

Clark openly admits that his help is a necessity with the new babies. During the day, Toshia lets the boys set their own schedule; but when one wakes up during the night she automatically wakes the other one up. She and her husband both get up and while Toshia changes one baby, Clark gets the bottles ready. Clark then takes the first baby while Toshia changes the second one.

"It really gets a bit funny," said Clark. "Neither of us ever knows which baby we have during those times so I never call them by names. I just ask Toshia 'who have I got and where does he go?'"

"The nightly feedings have become a bit of a ritual," added Toshia. "At first we tried not talking during this time — just taking care of the babies and trying to remain half asleep — but it didn't work. So now we turn on all the lights and the television."

Clark injected: "Would you believe they have game shows on television at 3 a.m.? We've managed to turn it into an experience but I do feel a bit weary when it's time to go to work the next morning."

Clark explained the big difference between having one new baby — or two. "There's no question that I had to get involved," he said. "When there's only one baby you can roll over and play dead, but if I tried that now I'd get a swift kick in the backside.

"At least I have one advantage at night," he added. "Since the one I'm feeding gets a head start — that means that I can get both him and myself back to bed while Toshia's still watching game shows!"

Both Toshia and Clark credit their friends with making these first few weeks much easier. The friends got together and decided to alternate providing the family with a delicious evening meal for the first month or so.

"It's like gourmet dining," Clark piped in. "We've had everything from roast beef with stuffed potatoes to cannoli with spinach salad."

Toshia, who said that she can't stand a lot of confusion in the house, is also lucky to have her mother's help. Her parents, Bea and Earl Leffingwell live in Carmel Valley, "So most days," said Toshia, "mom arrives about 10 a.m. and stays until 4 p.m. She's been a godsend."

Brittany and Quincy are also a big help, said their mother. "They're not the least bit jealous, and they enjoy holding the babies and fetching diapers, bottles and such. Both Clark and I make it a point to spend plenty of time with them."

Adam and Erik were born at Community Hospital on May 9. Adam, who weighed 9 pounds, 5 ounces, arrived at 10:23 a.m. and Erik, who weighed 8 pounds, 3 ounces arrived at 10:36 a.m.

" 'Oh my god!' was about all I could say when the second baby arrived," said Clark adding that he couldn't afford to pass out "double cigars" but that his daughters did pass out "double suckers" at Sunday School.

"Twins are getting more common," added Toshia. "Doctors now say that waiting until later in life to have children increases the incidence of twins. There's some interesting studies being made on twins now and I'm anxious to watch the boys develop and see how they react to each other."

The Struves, who met while attending San Jose State, said that many of their friends are also having their families later because they prefer to finish their education before settling into marriage and a family. Toshia majored in recreation and Clark majored in risk management and insurance.

Toshia has lived in Carmel most of her life. Clark was born in Vallejo and spent two years in Viet Nam while in the U.S. Army. The couple has been married for 12 years.

When asked if they planned to have more children, Toshia answered: "No, I think this is it" — to which Clark replied: "I think she's right."

New arrivals

Kersten Elizabeth Wehde

Kersten Elizabeth Wehde may be a newcomer to the world but she's already discovered the joy of staying up all night.

This wee miss, daughter of Bill and Mari Wehde of Carmel, was born at Community Hospital at 3:52 a.m. on May 3. She weighed eight pounds, fourteen ounces and has dark hair and big blue eyes. Her older brother, Kent Christian, 2 1/2, considers her a bit of a pest at this point because she's too little to play—"So," said his mom, "He's taken the attitude of 'I'll just ignore her.'"

Kersten's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Wehde of Santa Rosa. Her maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Nils Peterson of Santa Monica.

Kersten's dad is a State Farm Insurance agent in Carmel and her mom says she has her hands very full at home.

"Bill probably thinks I sit around all day eating bon-bons and watching the 'soaps'," said Mari adding that the new dad also has a way of sleeping right through all the commotion at night.

Dad is really a pretty nice fellow and takes young Kent off to the greens each evening so the two of them can practice their grip and swing. Kent even has his own set of miniature golf clubs.

He was also in the delivery room when Kersten was born but was so busy snapping pictures that he almost forgot to tell Mari that the new baby was a girl. When he did get around to it, the new mother who was hoping for a daughter said: "Better double check just to make sure!"

From the sound of things Kersten is managing to keep the entire family jumping to her command.

Amanda Lauren Sobeck

Holding the command post at the Pebble Beach home of Raymond and Karin Sobeck is little Amanda Lauren who was born at Community Hospital May 7 at 8:30 a.m.

Amanda weighed six pounds, fifteen ounces and has blond hair and blue eyes. She was also welcomed into the family by her big brother, Joshua, 7, "Who," said Mrs. Sobeck, "loves to hold her and thinks she's terrific."

Amanda's dad is a contractor and her mom is the director of Home Care for The Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. Mom is now on a leave of absence, but will return to her duties September 1.

The proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Sobeck of Minnesota and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sweet of New Mexico.

Amanda's father is doing his share of caring for her needs. Not only does he do the diapering in the morning but each evening he takes Amanda for a stroll in her baby carriage.

April Elisabeth Leach

Happiness is wanting a baby girl and getting exactly what you ordered. So there is no question as to why there are so many happy sounds coming from the Pebble Beach home of Michael and Jill Leach.

Little Miss April Elisabeth was born at Community Hospital May 8 at 10:38 a.m. She weighed six pounds, fifteen ounces and was 19½ inches long. She has a wee bit of light brown hair and deep blue eyes.

The Leaches also have a son, Michael James, 2, who acclaims himself the new "diaper fetcher" and loves to smother his new sister with kisses.

April's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leach of Novato; her maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Hunter of Pebble Beach.

The new father is a greenskeeper at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club and mom says that when she isn't busy having babies she's a professional beautician. "I guess you might say that I'm out of commission for the next couple of years," she added.

Jill also said that she feels that she is much more relaxed with April than she was with her first baby. She was also so determined to have a girl that both she and her husband referred to the baby as "April" for the full nine months before her birth. "I even hung a pink dress in the nursery just for good luck," said Jill.

She said that there is no question that Bill is the "greatest father on earth. He pitches in and helps with everything before I even have a chance to ask for help," she added.

You're in a beautiful world, April!

Andrew David Armanasco

The little newcomer at the Carmel home of David and Chris Armanasco is Andrew David.

Baby Andrew (whom his parents are thinking of calling Drew) was born April 27 at Community Hospital at 12:56 p.m. He weighed in at eight pounds, two ounces and has dark brown hair and eyes.

Andrew's paternal grandfather is August Armanasco of Carmel. His maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W.W. Durney of Pebble Beach.

Also welcoming Andrew into the family are his sister, Kimberly, 5, and young Nicholas, 3.

"The children are delighted with the new baby," said Mrs. Armanasco, adding that when the youngsters arrived at the hospital for their first peek at Andrew — he had gifts waiting for them.

Andrew's father is a wine producer and represents Durney Vineyards in Carmel Valley. His mom says she has her hands full being a wife and mother.

The social scene should prepare for young Andrew because according to his mother he loves people and socializing and has no trouble staying awake until the wee hours of the morning.

Welcome Andrew (Drew) David!

Davidson thinks planning chair should rotate

By BABS COROVESSIS

RETIRING PLANNING COMMISSIONER Don Davidson thinks the commission chairmanship should rotate. The commission disagreed and re-elected chairman Bob Stephenson and Sandy Swain, vice chairman. The action came as the panel's May 27 meeting.

It will mark third terms for both. Neither Davidson or Anne Woolworth, whose terms expired that same day, could vote.

Davidson said he objected to anyone holding the chairmanship of the Planning Commission for three consecutive years, or even two years because it encourages "a certain staleness or a certain lack of variety by not allowing itself the opportunity of experiencing other people as chairpersons of the group."

•

CITY HALL records show that since the Planning Commission was formed in 1947, there have only been 14 chairman in the 34-year period.

Persons and length of terms were P.A. McCreery, six years; Florence Josselyn, two years; Keith B. Evans, three months; Frank Putnam, 14 months; George Willox, four years; Herbert B. Blanks, two years; Fred Keeble, five years in three separate terms; Dorothy L. von Meier, four years; Charles McEwen, one year; Olof Dahlstrand, two years; Dorothea Roberts, two years in two different terms; Robert Evans, one year; Edward Neroda, one year, and Stephenson, starting his third term.

Davidson made it clear he did not object to Stephenson personally as chairman, but opposed the concept. He said that while the commission presently "was not feeling any discomfort with the chairmanship of the commission," he favored rotating the office annually "like several other commissions in the community do."

Stephenson replied that "I can only say George Washington made the same comment after his second term as president of the U.S., so you're in good company."

Commissioner Arthur Mertens quipped, "so we re-elected Roosevelt."

•

OBJECTION to the rotation idea came from Miss Swain, who argued that some people on the Planning Commission do not have the extra time to serve as chairman.

"There are also people I feel that perhaps are better Indians than chiefs. The world is made up of all kinds of people, and there are leaders and there are followers," Commissioner Swain noted. "And if you have a good leader, and a verbal follower, then I really see nothing wrong with that at all," she added.

She also disagreed with the comment about "staleness" and said she felt the commission has "operated extremely well with Bob as head, and I know Don wasn't being personal."

Stephenson then recommended Miss Swain be advanced from vice chairman to chairman.

"I would have to decline that nomination," Commissioner Swain said.

"I'm not sure you're in a position to," said Stephenson.

"Yes, I think this is still a democracy," Miss Swain quipped.

Mertens seconded Miss Swain's nomination of Stephenson, which passed unanimously, but with Miss Woolworth and Davidson not voting.

"I see no reason to change horses in the middle of the stream," Miss Swain said before the vote.

•

WHEN COMMISSIONER James Wright nominated Miss Swain for vice chairman, Davidson again stepped in, pulled the microphone closer and said "Now let me make another comment about that.

"If anyone feels what I said has any merit at all, then if we're going to choose a vice chairman, then we should choose a vice chairman who does not have the resistence of moving into the chairmanship that Commissioner Swain has shown," said Davidson.

"She has veen vice chairman for two consecutive years, and has declined to move into the chairmanship on both those years. I simply think that does reflect a stagnancy, a stagnancy of ideas, a stagnancy of concepts, a stagnancy of something — about not wanting to at least in the vice chairman position place someone other than the person who has been there and done very well for two years," Davidson stressed.

Chairman Stephenson objected, saying "I don't understand the stagnancy — the chairman and the vice chairman have neither one tried to run the meetings. I don't think either one of us has tried to orchestrate these meetings.

"I think the meetings have been open to anyone to make a comment about the organization or direction or the context, and I don't follow your thinking of stagnancy," added Stephenson. "Anyone who has an idea or progressive thought is at liberty to express it," the chairman noted.

Davidson interjected, "I was not referring to the stagnancy of the position, but the stagnancy of the commission as a whole . . . the commission putting itself in the position having the potential for becoming stagnant by a process which looks to me to be basically unhealthy."

No other comments were made by any of the commissioners. The commission then approved appointment of Mary Jahr-Purvis as commission secretary and adjourned.

$12-$15 million needed to buy major landholdings in Big Sur

ALL THE MAJOR land holdings in Big Sur could be purchased for $12 to $15 million, and the Big Sur Land Trust is looking for some well-heeled investors to help preserve the Sur coast.

"We're trying to get some big national funding, from some place like the Vanderbilt or Rockefeller Foundations," said Lorri Lockwood, secretary of the Big Sur Land Trust.

Advisors of the trust discussed aggressive pursuit of significant financing to secure major land parcels in Big Sur in public trust at a recent meeting at the Big Sur home of Virginia and Seeley Mudd.

"The big ranches down in Big Sur could be bought up for very little," Mrs. Lockwood said. "We estimate that $12 to $15 million could buy up all the ranches in Big Sur."

Trustee Lloyd Addleman was named to investigate further the possibility of obtaining some private capital to place those ranch lands into trust status.

•

TRUSTEES ALSO HEARD a report from executive director Brian Steen on current projects, including the recent designation of a house in Big Sur by Emil White for the Henry Miller Memorial Library.

A portrait of novelist Henry Miller has been donated to the library and suitable books are being located and compiled. Volunteers to manage the library and catalog acquisitions are being coordinated by Nancy Hopkins.

The Big Sur Land Trust is still negotiating with the Odello family of Carmel for an agreement to preserve its 134-acre property south of the Carmel River and east of Highway 1. The trust recently prepared a 120-page report on the Odello land which presents alternatives to the proposed 200-unit hotel, 97 condominiums and a farmer's market.

Through the efforts of the law firm of Noland, Hamerly, Etienne and Hoss, the Big Sur Land Trust has received 13 acres adjacent to Otter Cove, for management and preservation of a greenbelt around the subdivision, Steen told the group.

A total of 3,993 acres of Big Sur coast has been protected by landowners working through the land trust since it was incorporated in 1978. The most recent action involves a 17-acre parcel of redwood canyon on the Santa Lucia Ranch.

Another 17-acre site at Soberanes Creek has been donated by Bill Hudson in scenic easement, with timber, mineral and development rights, Steen noted.

Largest transaction by the trust was the 3,040-acre Gamboa Point Ranch. The trust acted as middle part buyer in sale of the land to industrialist David Packard, with restrictions on mining, logging, and commercial and industrial use.

The land trust also participated in the sale of an 18-acre parcel on the north side of Partington Canyon to the Save-the-Redwoods League, which then conveyed the property to the California State Parks Department.

The trust also has supported restoration of the historic Livermore Ledge cabin at John Little State Park under the direction of Frank Trotter. Another $1,200 is needed for new roofing materials, Steen said.

In the coming months, the Big Sur Land Trust will become more active in the local coastal programs as they affect the Big Sur coast, Steen added.

City, Flaherty's agree on number of permitted signs

THE CARMEL PLANNING Commission and the owner of Flaherty's Oyster Bar and Seafood Grill reached a compromise May 20 over the number of signs that would be allowed in the two food establishments.

Owner Flaherty Swanston volunteered to remove a total of seven signs, leaivng 10 signs or decals at the two restaurants. The vote on the compromise plan was 5 to 2, with strong objections by Commissioner Donald Davidson. Also voting "no" was Commissioner John Logan.

According to Planning Director Bob Griggs, the commission settled on the compromise because the city had erred five years earlier by not requiring applications for signs at the Oyster Bay. "Until recently we didn't catch the fact that the commission had not approved some of his signs through the regular planning process. There were no sign applications on file here. It was a misunderstanding," Griggs said.

Davidson asked for a count on the number of remaining signs. He was told there were 10.

Anybody know any other restaurants in town that have 10 signs?" asked Davidson.

Chairman Bob Stephenson said he could justify that number because of "the high quality of the signs" and the fact that many were simply decals on the windows and doors.

City records also reflected ambiguity over which of the signs at Flaherty's had been approved by the commission in the past.

Griggs noted that the commission retroactively approved existing signs to make them legal, and allowed the new Flaherty's Seafood Grill to have signs similar to the Oyster Bar. Two menu boards in the window of the Grill were the only new signs approved.

Swanston said he and the Commission were under the impression that the signs were approved all along. He added that he had already removed six window signs and one overhanging sign.

He had no comment following the commission's approval.

Davidson, unsatisfied, declared: "I'm fond of the restaurant and fond of the 'scene' there, but if everyone gets elegant, fine signs, people will be asking for signs everywhere. Some people ask for two signs and we give them the devil about it," said Davidson. "I have to object that the signs are excessive, though of excellent quality," added Davidson.

Swanston said he knew the issue "is confusing." He explained that the two menu boards in the grill window serve different purposes, and he wanted both to remain.

The sign situation at the grill and oyster bar was brought to the city's attention in March when Commissioner Sandy Swain complained of counting 18 signs in the two facilities.

Griggs said an ordinance allows a certain number of square feet of signs.

He added, however, that it has been a long-standing policy of the commission "for businesses to have just one, or possibly two signs."

Developing Piccadilly Park may cost $75,000

By BABS COROVESSIS

DEVELOPMENT OF the Piccadilly Nursery site on Dolores in Carmel into a public park will require the services of a landscape architect. The entire project could cost $75,000.

The figure was disclosed at the Forestry Commission meeting May 26 when City Adminstrator Doug Peterson told the commission that a number of city council members had asked him about the status of the controversial Piccadilly site.

"There seems to be a certain amount of urgency to get something rolling on that project," Peterson told the commission.

Peterson said that due to the estimated cost of the project, he and City Forester Greg D'Ambrosio agreed the park development work "is not something I feel we can justify our own city force doing." He added that state law requires projects costing in excess of $5,000 be put out for public bid.

The city administrator also said D'Ambrosio felt the project should have a professional landscape designer. "I don't see that I have the background to design certain structures, like patios, or foundations," D'Ambrosio said.

Peterson also noted that the Forestry Division is "up to its eyebrows" with work.

Peterson said he is recommending to the City Council that the Forestry Commission serve as the interview board for landscape architects and recommend on to the Council.

Matt Smith, chairman of the Forestry Commission, commented that the Piccadilly project should come before the entire commission rather than a subcommittee because "the park and how it's handled is important." Smith added, "I don't know if we're talking about a lot of money or not."

"I think we are. Yes," said Peterson. "I put into the budget $75,000. If we can do it for less, fine, in view of the cost the city has already invested in the land," Peterson said.

The land site, on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh, cost the city $396,000.

PETERSON SAID that since the land for the planned park already has cost so much, the city staff and officials want to go through the process of creating the park as "a permanent thing."

Peterson said there was "nothing cut and dried about the $75,000 figure. It's only an amount for the Council to consider during budget deliberations, depending on what they want to see on that property," he said.

The City Administrator noted, however, that discussions thus far on development of Piccadilly include putting in "a considerable amount of vegetation and mature trees."

Other concepts include a large patio area, benches, tables, fencing, a resting area, and the possibility of a mural on an adjacent building wall.

"I'd be very pleased if the amount is less than that. The thing is, the city has invested a substantial sum already and I think the idea is to do it right the first time, not throw in a few benches and put down a little grass seed and then have people say it doesn't look great," Peterson added.

Peterson stressed that due to its location, Piccadilly, like Devendorf Park, will have "intense use," Peterson predicted. Therefore it needs to be developed and landscaped to minimize maintenance but provide a pleasant environment, he said.

He added that he is interested in having the project "move fast" so there will be more there than "a bare lot and one oak tree."

Exact date for a special session of the Forestry Commission was not set. Commissioner Hugh Smith will present a list of landscape architects to the city administrator. Peterson recommended that the Commission, limit its interview to a maximum of four firms.

Commissioner Ray Taylor questioned just how clear the city is about what all it wants in the park. "If we don't know what we want in the park how the heck are they (architects) going to know?" he asked.

The Commission indicated its first focus will be on professional qualifications of individuals, then to determine guidelines from the Council about what the park should contain on the 4,500-square-foot lot.

■ In other action, Peterson also told the commission that he has recommended to the Council a procedure for moving ahead with design and engineering for a part of the Scenic Road walkway, utilizing funds in the existing 1980-81 budget.

"We do have the funds set aside in the upcoming (81-82) budget for construction of the project," Peterson said. He gave no dollar figure and said the budgeted amount was "a rough estimate." Depending on final plans, Peterson said either all or a portion of the walkway could be built.

Duffy Carolan reigns undefeated in track

By ELIZABETH SARET

DUFFY CAROLAN IS the only member of the Carmel High School track team to qualify for Central Coast Sections (C.C.S.). Duffy has been undefeated in four years of M.T.A.L. dual meets and set an M.T.A.L. and school record in the 100 meter low hurdles at 15.8. She also set a school record in the 300 low hurdle at 48.31.

Other highlights for the track season were Richard Murphy's 22.2 in the 200 meter and 50.8 in the 400 meter; and Carl Still's 6'2" in the high jump, equalling the second best height in Carmel High School's history. Carlos Zarate ran a 10:24.84 in the 3200 meter. Astrid Kafurke, a freshman, made the finals of the 100 meter low hurdle in Region IV. Steve Heuer was the Frosh/Soph high point man in the M.T.A.L. championships.

Coach Bob Brooks said, "The season ended on a positive note with the number of personal records by the team."

The track awards banquet was held on Monday, June 1 at the Carmel High School cafeteria. Boy's varsity Most Valuable Player went to Richard Murphy, Most Improved to Sean Owen, and Captain to Carl Still. Girl's varsity Most Valuable Player went to Duffy Carolan, Most Improved to Kara Kirk and Captain to Theresa Brochini. Frosh/Soph Most Valuable Player went to Alex Hubbard and Most Improved to Carlos Zarate.

The Girl's Softball banquet was held on Wednesday, May 27 at the Carmel High School cafeteria. Varsity Most Improved went to Laurie Nolte and Most Valuable to Tricia Martin. Frosh/Soph Most Valuable Player went to Ginger Wescott and Most Improved to Allison Murray.

At the Carmel High School awards assembly, held in the gym on Thursday May 29, Olaf deRouen and Anthony Galang received an award for winning the doubles competition in M.T.A.L. and for placing second in C.C.S. The Bench Warmers Award for outstanding team play and scholarship went to Anthony Galang and Anna Williams. Outstanding Boy Athlete for Carmel High School (M.V.P.) went to Greg Raynes, and Outstanding Girl Athlete to Dana Hunter.

The new zone of influence that must be considered in any proposed zoning change is 300 feet from the perimeter of a city block.

The new policy was enacted at the Carmel Planning Commission's May 20 meeting. All of the commissioners except Anne Woolworth favored the proposal.

It arose from a request by Dan Clarke, representing owners of the Longstreth Building, located on the southeast corner of Junipero and Fifth, who wants to change the zoning to allow the building to be used as office space, apartments, or, as an alternative, motel rooms with kitchens.

Planning Director Bob Griggs told Clarke that he has an unlimited amount of time to get the required signatures of 50 percent of the owners in the ground area, which includes the surrounding zone of influence.

Clarke said the language of the zoning regulation poses "an onerous burden" since an applicant for zoning change must obtain the required signatures even before applying to the city for the change.

Commissioner Don Davidson noted that even if it seemed like "an onerous burden, zoning changes are major changes and not to be taken lightly."

The Longstreth Building currently is in the C-1-L (limited commercial) zone; owners want it rezoned to C-1-S (service commercial).

THE MONTEREY COUNTY Board of Supervisors has voted unanimously to recommend protected waterway status for the Carmel River.

The action, which came Tuesday, May 26, at the urging of Fifth District Supervisor William Peters of Carmel Valley, may enable the county to receive state matching funds for a land use and water resource analysis of the river.

Sen. Henry Mello (D-17th) and Assemblyman Sam Farr (D-28th have both expressed support for the action and their willingness to sponsor the necessary legislation.

In addition, the designation of the Carmel River as a protected waterway has been supported by the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, the Carmel River Watch, and the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

Supervisor Peters said such designation would neither promote nor preclude the possible construction of another dam on the upper Carmel River.

"I'm very pleased it was approved," Peters said. "This is an important step toward the objectives of the revised Carmel Valley Master Plan. We need a comprehensive master plan for the river. We need to think of our river as a resource in the community, as a natural feature of our valley, and as a water source for the whole Peninsula."

The State Department of Fish and Game has estimated that funds of up to $25,000 could be made available for a river study, on a local matching basis, but it may be "touch and go" whether a piece of legislation to that end will be passed during this session of the Legislature, Peters said.

•

VARIOUS INLAND waterways of special significance — including the Carmel River— were designated for study under the California Protected Waterways Act. The Big Sur River in Monterey County and the San Lorenzo River in Santa Cruz County have been studied under terms of the act.

The scope of the study and issues addressed would be determined by the local agency that is designated as the "lead agency." Both the Monterey County Planning Department and the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District have expressed interest in managing such a study.

The department of Fish and Game would act as a coordinator of the study, once local matching funds are secured.

Kevin La Graff, administrative aide to Sen. Henry Mello, said the senator plans to immediately introduce a resolution designating the Carmel River as a protected waterway, and he will make an effort to secure state funds before the close of the current legislative session.

"We also hope to see about possible funding for a management plan for the Carmel River," La Graff added.

STAYING CLEAR...

Softly nestled among the pine trees overlooking the majestic ocean waits an experience of deep and peaceful relaxation. Staying Clear is a health center for stress reduction and self-nurturing through Japanese (shiatsu) and Swedish massage, complete with herbal steam. Claudia Treadwell, body/stress consultant, has been in private practice over 10 years and has studied with doctors, psychotherapists, herbologists, and master massage technicians from several countries. Ms. Treadwell has received her advanced degrees in Swedish Massage Therapy and Ceramics, while teaching at the University of California. The treatment is 90 minutes and begins with an herbal steam of mint and eucalyptus leaves. The massage itself is a full hour and concentrates on personal problem areas, particularly the neck, back and shoulders. The work is patient, deep and custom-suited to each woman. Afterwards, one may listen to the sounds of the crashing surf. Sparkling water with lemon or fruit juice is served as one takes a refreshing shower, ready to return to the world. Claudia discusses your personal Body Tension Map which you may keep as an indicator of your particular stresses and how to cope with them in a practical everyday manner.

Peninsula Business

What Does the Transamerica Pyramid Have in Common With the Monterey Peninsula?

THE TRANSAMERICA PYRAMID represents one of the best office buildings in the San Francisco Bay Area . . . a prestige location in high demand. On the Peninsula one of the most prestigious professional and business addresses is in Carmel.

This new office complex offers the fine amenities of the urban high-rises, but also many additional features undreamed of by the Big City Boys . . . such as your own balcony overlooking a large enclosed patio with roses, trees and a manicured lawn . . . private lavatories with executive showers . . . and daily UPS motor and air express package service.

There is also a copy center, a helpful staff and plenty of free parking with no congestion (unlike the Big City or even many places on the Peninsula). And all this is surrounded by world famous golf and tennis within walking distance.

Office sizes range up to 1600 feet and rents start at an affordable $235 a month including utilities! Now there's an inflation fighter.

Mrs. Jeffrey Marc Conneau

Ann Springer weds Jeff Conneau

Ann Marie Springer, daughter of Bruce and Elizabeth Springer of Carmel and Jeffrey Marc Conneau, son of Ernest Conneau of Groveland and Marie Conneau of Palo Alto, were united in marriage on May 30.

The ceremony was held in the Church of The Wayfarer with the Rev. Charles C. Anker officiating.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Suzanne Springer of New Orleans, La.

Best man was Christopher Conneau of Willits, brother of the groom. Attendant was David Conneau, brother of the bridegroom, of Pacific Grove.

Ushers were Michael Springer, brother of the bride, Bret Conneau, nephew of the bridegroom, of Pacific Grove, and Bob Lewis of Carmel Valley.

The bride, a 1974 graduate of Carmel High School, attended Monterey Peninsula College.

The bridegroom was graduated from Junipero Memorial High School in 1967 and also attended M.P.C. He is a retail clerk with Safeway in Carmel Valley.

Following a two-month honeymoon to the East Coast and Canada, the couple will live in Carmel Valley.

Kathryn Cronander now Mrs. Richard Goodwin

Kathryn Cronander of Carmel became the bride of Richard Eugene Goodwin of Pebble Beach on Saturday, May 23.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Markle Rowe of Carmel and Mr. James H. Cronander of Woodside.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. George G. Fraley of Pebble Beach and the late Mr. John T. Goodwin.

The 4:30 p.m. ceremony was held at the Carmel Presbyterian Church with the Rev. William H. Welch officiating.

The bride wore her mother's designer gown of white eyelet batiste with a marquisette skirt which extended into a slight train. With it, she wore a lace hat and carried a handkerchief of Battenberg lace made by her great grandmother. Her bridal bouquet was of spring flowers and roses.

Bridesmaids were Miss Sydney Mitchess and Miss Star Mallory.

Best man was Robert T. Goodwin, brother of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom was graduated from Pacific Grove High School and is now employed as a carpenter.

The couple will reside in Carmel.

Pre-trial hearing for Peters postponed until June 26

A hearing on pre-trial motions in the Grand Jury case against Fifth District Monterey County Supervisor William Peters in Monterey County Superior Court has been continued to June 26.

The continuance was requested and granted because Peters' attorney, Harry Delizonna of San Jose, wasn't prepared for the original June 1 hearing date.

The motion will challenge the legal sufficiency of the Grand Jury's evidence in perjury and conflict of interest charges. Peters' trial date on the 10-count accusation is July 13.

The charges involve Peters' connections with the Carmel Valley Ranch development and the Carmel Valley Racquet Club. He is charged with failure to disclose a $5,220 debt for work the ranch developer performed at his Carmel Valley home.

Peters is also accused of failure to divulge a free membership on the racquet club, and is also charged with voting as a supervisor on decisions affecting the Carmel Valley Ranch. If convicted of any of the 10 counts, Peters would be removed from office.

Trial is set for Aug. 10 in a lawsuit brought by Dist. Atty. William Curtis against Peters just before last year's election, in which Peters was charged with willfully failing to disclose his ties with the Carmel Valley Ranch and profits he earned from a real estate partnership.

Parking permits still available

The City of Carmel will issue 1981 resident parking permits on Wednesday and Friday mornings from 8:30 to noon.

The permits allow a Carmel residents to park for two hours in one-hour zones. Permits cost $2 and are available only to Carmel residents who are registered voters. Applicants must bring vehicle and current vehicle registration to City Hall.

Poker ride June 13

If you have ever wanted to ride horses and play poker at the sme time, Equestrian Trails, Inc. will give you the chance.

ETI will sponsor a poker ride Saturday, June 13 at Toro Regional Park. A poker ride is a pleasure trail ride with five stops. At each stop the rider receives a poker card. At the end of the trail, the person with the best poker hand wins a prize.

The mail entry deadline for the ride is Wednesday, June 10.

Carmel planners consider moratorium on business changes until General Plan is adopted

By BABS COROVESSIS

A MORATORIUM on any increases in commercial activity or changes in existing businesses in Carmel is being considered by the Carmel Planning Commission while the General Plan is being revised.

The proposal emerged at the commission's Land Use Commitee for study. It would have to be approved by the full commission before being forwarded to the City Council for implementation.

•

PLANNING DIRECTOR Bob Griggs said imposition of a moratorium is a common practice when areas are being studied for planning changes. He said it is a misconception that such a procedure would curtail business activity. "You can't bring the town to a standstill; and that is not the intention," Griggs added.

What it could mean, he said, is a limit on new construction which would introduce new uses into a zoning area if planners felt it would be detrimental to the city.

Any moratorium amounts to a "7 to 12-month delay" which would put some requests in abeyance for that period. Any business transactions involving sale and similar use of property would be unaffected by the moratorium, Griggs added.

For example, Griggs said, if an apparel store changed ownership, it would not limit new owners from operating a clothing store. If the store area were to be put to another use, however — such as a tourist-oriented business like a gift shop — the moratorium could hold that in abeyance until completion of the General Plan.

Planning Director Bob Griggs informed the commission of a memo from City Administrator Doug Peterson which said that "things are moving rapidly" on the status of the General Plan. Peterson anticipated receiving anywhere from eight to 12 bids from consultants who would direct revision of Carmel's 1973 General Plan. The plan is a comprehensive guide for the future development of the city and area in its zone of influence.

Officials hope to select a consultant by June 30.

Planning Commissioner John Logan said that since a number of matters involving the Genral Plan had come before the Planning Commission recently the commission should not duplicate General Plan work. However, Logan added that "once the General Plan is actually started, and I think a legal date for that starts when we sign a contract with consultants because the city then is committed — at that time I think it would be very advisable for the city to impose a moratorium on any sort of increase in commercial activity in the city or changes in existing businesses during the time of the preparation of the General Plan."

OUTGOING COMMISSIONER Don Davidson told the commission he considered the status of the General Plan revision "is in the same situation it is now as it was four years ago.

"There may be some subtle differences. However, as I see the General Plan right now, it is no closer to existence than it was four years ago," Davidson stated.

Based on that idea, Davidson said he would be "very hesitant to have us do anything that would involve putting aside matters of planning which might ultimately be involved in the General Plan on the basis that the General Plan is about to be developed."

He added that Griggs had once estimated the revision might take two years, "given the way things move around this town," Davidson added.

He encouraged the commission not to do things differently just because of the General Plan, unless it would be what Logan suggested on the moratorium from the date of contract.

"I would again remind you, that is a future date — it does not exist yet. There is no date set, Davidson noted.

If a moratorium were imposed, then, he said the Planning Commission would have the opportunity of not working on issues that are related to the General Plan.

He told the commission he was not comfortable with what was done with the issue he raised on the possible expansion of motels downtown.

"I felt in essence that was put aside because we didn't want to face it or look directly at it and we were expecting a General Plan that would give us guidelines for dealing with it. I think that is unrealistic," Davidson added.

He said until the Commission has very strong indications that the General Plan is actively being worked on, "I think we should go ahead and look at each of those issues and do the best we can. And if we stomp out a brush fire three weeks before the General Plan is formally enacted, it can be changed at the time of enactment of the General Plan.

"We still need to put out the brushfire; and we still need to do the piecemeal kinds of things that we have been strapped by doing by not having an adequate General Plan," Davidson insisted.

"And until we have that document, available in force, we still need to stomp out the brush fires now until we have an enforceable document," Davidson added.

Logan agreed, saying that if Carmel is to have a General Plan of substantial nature, "it should be considered at that time. And if we aren't, I agree with Dr. Davidson."

No other commissioners had comments on the moratorium.

CV Youth Center offers summer day camp for 5-11 year olds

The Carmel Valley Community Youth Center will offer a community day camp with extended hours this summer for children 5 to 11 years of age.

The camp will begin Monday, June 15 and end Thursday, Aug. 27. Camp hours will be Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Three two-week mini sessions will also be available; they begin June 22. There will also be extended care from 7 to 10 a.m. and 3 to 6 p.m. daily to accommodate working parents.

Pre-registration is required and will be open two days only — Friday, June 5 from 7 to 8 p.m. and Saturday, June 6 from 3 to 5 p.m. at the community center, Carmel Valley and Ford roads.

Fees are $7.50 per day and $75 per two-week mini session. Fees are payable prior to each session. There is an additional charge for extended care.

Vicki Owen will be director of the community day camp. Miss Owen will offer games, crafts, and play activities. Activities will be scheduled to allow for swim lessons and Little League practice.

Snacks will be provided by the camp but parents must provide lunches.

Miss Owen previously operated her own day care facility. She currently coaches Little League and drives a bus for the Carmel school district.

Special events are also planned for junior high (12-14), senior high (15-20), and adult groups at the Community Center this summer.

The teen events will begin with a dance at the community center Friday, June 12, at 8 p.m. for those in senior high. Dancing will be to a live band. A junior high dance will be held the following week on June 17 at 7 p.m. The dances for each group will continue once a month. Doug Rochelle of Rochelle Productions, former promoter of live concerts at the Mission Ranch, will help hire bands.

Sports-minded teens and adults will have volleyball, softball and basketball games scheduled as interest develops. Upon approval from the school district, senior high students will also have one swim party per week.

For those more inclined to indoor sports, directors of the ongoing recreation program will soon announce their summer classes for various age groups. There is also bingo for adults every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the community center.

For all ages, first-run movies are also on the summer schedule. The first film will be shown Friday, June 26 at the community center. Film titles and show times will be posted around Carmel Valley Village.

Homes needed for vist visiting French students

Parlez-vous francais?

A group of 30 young French students which will arrive on the Monterey Peninsula this summer need families willing to open their homes to them for a four-week period.

The students are part of an exchange program sponsored by Interstudy, an educational travel organization that arranges programs for students from Europe, South America and the Orient to visit the United States and Canada.

For the past 10 years, Interstudy has arranged for more than 16,000 students to experience the North American way of life, as students of our culture and as goodwill ambassadors from their own countries.

The students will arrive July 31 and visit through Aug. 27. They are between the ages of 15 and 24 and all have studied English for several years. They are able to read, write and speak English with some proficiency.

Host families are asked to provide room and board, to participate in orientation, welcome and farewell parties, to give their guests the opportunity to meet other Americans and take part in their cultural activities, and to allow the students the opportunity to share in the family's daily activities and experiences.

The students will be attending classes during the week; they would have breakfast and dinner with the family and sometimes luneh. Students attend classes from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The family will not receive any compensation for the room and board provided for the student.

RLS students win language honors

Several local students at Robert Louis Stevenson School have won certificates of merit in French and Spanish language contests.

Carol L. Cunningham of Carmel Valley placed first among fourth-level students in a western states French contest sponsored by the Northern California Chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French. Erika Bering of Pebble Beach placed fourth among first-level French students in Northern California.

In a contest sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese, Perry Belmont of Carmel Valley placed fourth for Northern California among second-level Spanish students. Heather Ferrill of Carmel won eighth place at the fourth level in Spanish.

Airman Anderson in Illinois

Airman Rodney J. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander J. Anderson of 20 Southbank Road, Carmel Valley, has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now recieve specialized instruction in the aircraft maintenance field.

AOP installation lunch Tuesday

The Monterey County Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi will have its 1981 installation luncheon on Tuesday, June 9 at 11:30 a.m. at the La Playa Hotel in Carmel.

The officers to be installed are Mrs. Wesley Nowell, president; Mrs. Albert Tomblin, vice-president; Mrs. Kenneth Hermann, treasurer; Mrs. Jack Riggs, recording secretary; and Mrs. Vernon Rose, corresponding secretary.

ACHIEVEMENT AWARD WINNER: Richard Foote, a senior at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach, receives a cash award at the finals of the 1981 Bank of America Achievement Awards for scholarship, social and community activities and leadership qualities held recently in Monterey. Foote won $500 as a runner-up in the liberal arts study field.

Deaths

Mary McGinnis

Mary M. McGinnis of Carmel died last week at Community Hospital after a period of failing health. She was 67.

Mrs. McGinnis lived on the Peninsula since 1978. She worked as a chief of the mental health department of the Superior Court division in Los Angeles county before retiring in 1955.

She is survived by her husband, James; sisters, Gloria Grey of Long Beach and Rosemary Wilmot of Pasadena; and a brother, Richard Mormino of Glendale.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
ORDINANCE NO. 81-13

AN ORDINANCE EXTENDING FOR ONE YEAR INTERIM ORDINANCE NO. 80-8 PROHIBITING TIME SHARE PROJECTS PENDING STUDY AND ADOPTION OF TIME SHARE REGULATIONS WHICH ORDINANCE WAS PREVIOUSLY EXTENDED FOR EIGHT MONTHS BY ORDINANCE NO. 80-19

WHEREAS, Interim Zoning Ordinance No. 80-8 was adopted by the City Council on June 9, 1980; and

WHEREAS, pursuant to Government Code Section 65858, Interim Zoning Ordinance No. 80-8 was extended for eight months by Ordinance No. 80-19; and

WHEREAS, Government Code Section 65858 authorizes extending Ordinance No. 80-8 for one year following the expiration of the eight months extension after public hearing; and

WHEREAS, the reasons for adopting Interim Zoning Ordinance No. 80-8 still exists and more time is needed to study time share projects and adopt permanent regulations; and

WHEREAS, a duly noticed public hearing on the question of extending Interim Zoning Ordinance No. 80-8 for one year was held on June 1, 1981;

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. Interim Zoning Ordinance No. 80-8 entitled "Interim Zoning Ordinance Prohibiting Time Share Projects Pending Study and Adoption of Time Share Regulations" adopted June 9, 1980 as extended by Ordinance No. 80-19, is extended for one year to midnight, June 8, 1982.

Section 2. The Interim Ordinance as extended prohibits conversion of the use of real property to time sharing projects or the creation of time sharing projects, uses, or estates in connection with real property. A "time sharing project" means any real property which may become subject to a time sharing program of any kind.

Section 3. The adoption of this Ordinance is required for the preservation of the public peace, health and safety, in that the City proposes to consider an enacting changes in the present zoning regulations as they relate to time sharing projects. These changes, it is deemed, are needed urgently to provide for regulation of development and creation of real estate time sharing projects. The City Council therefore adopts this Ordinance to avoid the frustration of the purpose of the proposed changes during the interim period of study, and to prevent unfair economic advantage to any persons able to make developments in these areas at this time.

Section 4. This ordinance shall become effective immediately upon its passage and adoption in that it is required for the preservation of the public peace, health and safety.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE SEA THIS 1st day of June, 1981, by the following roll call vote:

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING PART X, DIVISION 3, ARTICLE 3A, OF THE CARMEL MUNICIPAL CODE TO REGULATE ALLOWABLE SIGNS IN INTERIOR MALLS

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. Section 1303.11b—MAXIMUM ALLOWABLE SIGN AREA — is amended by the addition of subparagraph 4 and the renumbering of subparagraph 4 to subparagraph 5 as follows:

1303.11 SIGNS WITHIN THE COMMERCIAL DISTRICT.

a. PROHIBITED SIGNS.

.....

b. MAXIMUM ALLOWABLE SIGN AREA

1. .....
3. .....
4. A building designed in such a way as to have business locations within the interior of the structure served by an interior mall or by other means of ingress-and egress by the public shall be limited to one (1) sign at each entry identifying the building or mall name and a directory which may contain the names of all businesses within the building. Individual businesses within the building shall be limited to one (1) overhanging sign not to exceed three (3) square feet in area or one (1) flat sign not to exceed six (6) square feet in area when approved by the Design Review Board. Interior business locations shall not be entitled to individual signs on the exterior of the building adjacent to the public way or individual signs within the mall or walkway area of the building other than as permitted above.
5. The Design Review Board may make special exemptions to the above allowable areas where unusual design of a building requires special consideration.

Section 2. If any part of this Ordinance, even as small as a word or phrase, is found unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section 3. Effective Date: This ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

Carmel Youth Baseball

By WENDY BANKS

MOST TEAMS in each of the Carmel Youth Baseball Leagues have now played one complete round in the second half of the season. Winners for the first half of the Mustang League were Orange Julius, while Derek Rayne and Pine Inn tied in the Bronco Division, with the same win-loss record. Derek Rayne got the nod because they had beaten Pine Inn twice.

Van's Clocks is currently leading all contenders in the Bronco League, having posted their fourth straight win with no losses. Rob Karges scored two runs and Josh Banks went 3 for 4 to help the leaders beat La Playa, 14-5.

David Cuff hit a double for John Roscelli and Jeff Roberts made some terrific stops at the plate, but it wasn't enough to stop Van's Clock from winding up an 8-7 winner. Thane Hacker scored the winning run.

Darren Reed collected two big wins this week when he pitched Pine Inn to a 11-8 win over Derek Rayne and a 7-6 win over John Roscelli. Eric Hanzelka (PI) posted a triple and Brian Dalton shut out DR for two innings after three hits and plays to Matthew Cabot. JR loaded the bases in the first inning, but was stopped by a double play made by Darren Reed, Brian Dalton, and Matthew Cabot (PI).

A diving catch by Eric Palmquist (PI) for the third out in the bottom of the fifth kept the scoreboard reading La Playa 8, Pine Inn 1. Paul Wagstaff pitched the win and Jason Anderson (LP) and Brian Young (PI) both got doubles.

The Mustangs saw Nielsen Brothers post a 7-3 win over Rudy Harris. Christian Sutton helped in the pitching department. Leading hitters included: Robbie Takigawa (NM), Jimmy Witherall (RH), Donnie Nix (RH), Chip Meheen, playing shortstop for NM made a good stop and throw to first baseman Christian Braudrick to put out Jason Lande.

The tables were turned when Orange Julius shut out Nielsen Market, 10-0. Russell Peavey recorded a home run for OJ and David Kingsley (OJ) went 3 for 3. Christian Cummings caught a high foul ball cleanly for the winners, as well as hitting a triple. Russell Peavey also tripled and Scott Gill pitched for OJ.

CATCHING UP WITH girl's softball, Carmel Plaza almost beat Monterey Intersport again. Both Monica Reardon and Ann Marie Lowery each brought home two runs for a final score, 8-10. Carmel Plaza did defeat Fort Ord, 11-4, with Chris Redding getting the win. Deanna DeRouisi and Chris Redding were very effective hitters, each with a triple. Also helping CP were Janice Aldrich, and Valerie Wester.

Chris Redding pitched evenly and never allowed anything more than a one base hit from Ft. Ord. Carmel topped Joe Tate from Marina, 6-3. One outstanding fielding play was made by Janice Aldrich playing rover to Janine Pullen at first. Karla Palumbo tripled to score Ann Marie Lowery; Rochelle Davis went 2 for 2.

The older girls had a taste of victory when Monterey Peninsula Dental Group defeated Russo Insurance, 20-14. Nikki Kaye was the winning pitcher and also went 4 for 4; Susan Ellena and Karen Balog went 3 for 4 and Charlene Dufur 2 for 4.

When this same team faced Uyeda Brothers the scoreboard read 21-19 against Carmel. Twice doubling for MPDG was Susan Ellena, and Kim Gilpin got one. Darcy Russak had no errors in the field.

Village Inn had to settle for a forfeit over Pacific Grove. Since they were dressed and ready to play, they went out to dinner and then to visit their coach Ron Meredith's daughter who was in the hospital. It was quite a sight for Community Hospital to witness. Jennifer Hansen hit a home run at Middle School, scoring Elizabeth Dyer. Brandi Faia did an excellent job at second base and Jennifer Hansen guarded the plate well. Elizabeth Dyer hit a nice triple to add to a close scoring game; final score 17-20 with Carmel taking the loss from Uyeda Bros.

OVER AT THE Pony Field the Barnyard A's defeated Bruno's Padres, 4-3. Chris Meckel had a no-hit game with 2 out in the bottom of the 7th but James Thaymer hit a clean single up the middle. Meckel struck out 17 batters. Robert Zarazua went 3 for 4, Richard Brophy went 2 for 4, and Chad Patterson 2 for 3 — all for the A's.

Mediterranean Market is another Pinto League team of 7-8 year olds; Skip Braudrick is the coach. Players include: Benjamin Balesteri, Mario Bertolucci, Seth Besel, Colin Braudrick, Joe Damon, Matthew D'Attilio, Philip Fuerstner, Daniel Kleinbardt, Matthew Murphy, Julie Nix, Carey Stack, Byran Telford and Chad Atkinson.

LATE BULLETIN: Rudy Harris achieved first win of the Mustang season when they defeated Neanderthals, 11-7. Tony Boyd (RH) figured into the win when he doubled and then scored a run. Also coming up with RH doubles were: Will Griffith, Donnie Nix, Sean Morton and two for Jason Lande. Oliver Dear was on base twice and scored a run for Neanderthals.

In another Pony game, the Mets beat the Lions, 6-5; Jim Cooper was the winning pitcher. Joe DeRouisi (M) hit two doubles and leading hitters included: Jason Reate, Robert Diaz, Berndt Stolfi and Steve Wiesner, all from the Lions. Joe DeRouisi, Mets 3rd baseman, fielded a grounder hit by Chris Franklin and threw out the batter at 1st. The 1st baseman Paul Wirtz then threw out the Lions' runner Steve Wiesner as he was trying to score; the catcher was Jim Cooper. Berndt Stolfi (L) made a terrific catch in left field.

Other scores posted were: Tigers 4, A's 2; Padres 4, Tigers 3; Mets 7, Tigers 0. Leading the Pony League division are the Mets, followed by the Tigers, Lions, A's and Padres.

Beating Democrats is easier than defeating inflation

By JAMES RESTON

THE CAPITAL of the United States was so pretty and the Reagan administration was so happy about its "historic victory" in Congress that it almost took everybody's mind off the facts.

On the home front, the House of Representatives, last refuge of the Democrats in the national government, voted 253-176 for Reagan's $688.8 billion budget — approving the largest peacetime military expenditures in the nation's history and cutting back many of the social welfare programs introduced by the Democratic Party in the last 50 years.

On the foreign front, the president announced a "positive and constructive" meeting with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki of Japan, and emerged briefly from his convalescence in the White House to embrace Secretary of State Haig and proclaim Haig's performance at the recent conference with the NATO allies as a "triumph."

Well, there is something to these claims, but not quite as much as the administration is making of them. No doubt the president won a political victory over the Democrats in the House, but there is an important difference between beating the Democrats — Reagan's favorite game — and beating inflation and governing the country.

This was undoubtedly a critical and clarifying vote. The president convinced the country that it was time for a change — to cut the Carter budget and cut taxes — or at least time to give him a chance to prove his conservative philosophy. On TV and in the congressoinal cloakrooms, his team did a brilliant job of political persuasion and organization, and took away 63 Democratic votes from Speaker O'Neill, who had everything going for him except public opinion.

Nevertheless, O'Neill's miss may prove to be his mercy. If Tip and the other Democratic Party liberals had won, or even forced the Republican conservatives to compromise, Reagan could have blamed them for confusing the issue and denying him the chance to prove that his conservative philosophy of cutting the budget, cutting taxes and increasing, defense expenditures would reduce prices, interest rates and unemployment, and finally wipe out inflation and balance the federal budget. Now he has a clear chance to prove it.

ON THE FOREIGN FRONT, there was some progress, but no "triumphs." Haig persuaded the NATO allies to warn the Soviets that they should behave a little better if they wanted the U.S. to talk about limiting European-based nuclear missiles, but in turn he had to promise to renew the arms talks with Moscow.

Actually, the administration had little choice: In order to get more U.S. nuclear missiles on the ground in Western Europe, Haig had to agree to renew the stalled arms control conversations. The allies are well aware that four or five outspokenly anti-communist officials in the Reagan Pentagon and White House tend to oppose Haig's cautious efforts to get back to the negotiating table with the Soviets, so they went along with Haig's compromise in the hope of bolstering his position with Reagan.

The president has been taking a more moderate line on the U.S.S.R. in recent days. He has written to President Leonid Brezhnev about the control of military arms. He authorized Haig to promise the NATO allies that talks with the U.S.S.R. would be renewed, and he has been toning down his anti-communist rhetoric.

THIS IS STILL, however, an administration without a clear, consistent foreign policy voice at the top or for that matter a coherent foreign policy. It denounces the Soviets one day and lifts its grain embargo the next, without adequate consultation with allies who have reluctantly gone along with the embargo. Haig didn't like the decision on renewing grain sales to Moscow and was irritated when the secretary of agriculture initiated talks with the Soviets as soon as the embargo was lifted and without consulting the Cabinet. But as in the decision to put pressure on the Japanese to limit auto sales in this country, domestic political considerations prevailed.

The administration has not solved its Japanese problem. There is still an illusion in this administraton that Washington can use the Japanese as sort of a subsidiary to our foreign policy in the Pacific, pressing them to rearm, to reduce their exports in punishment for their success. But there's a danger that this will revive Japan's latent nationalism, and this danger was not removed by the courtesies of the Suzuki visit.

So it's still a little early to celebrate a major shift in U.S. policy at home and abroad. The president has undoubtedly won the right to put his domestic program into law and his victory over the Democrats in the House will strengthen his position abroad, but much depends on whether his program achieves the results he has promised.

Maybe the Reagan recovery program will work without a wages and prices policy, but the inflation goes on. The budget passed by the House is $42 billion more than present spending and it anticipates a $31 billion deficit. All this tends to moderate the enthusiasm here for the president's "historic victory" in the House and Haig's "triumphant" mission in Europe.

Signals of Softness

By WILLIAM SAFIRE

THE SYRIAN MISSILE crisis is the first Soviet test of the Reagan administration's will. The Reagan response to the Kremlin's probe has been dangerously soft.

The first sign of softness came when Secretary of State Haig prevented the Israelis from nipping the crisis in the bud by taking out the first missiles. As a result of the U.S. intercession, the batteries have been "thickened," promising heavier casualties to their removers.

The second signal of softness was the Haig invitation to the Soviets to re-enter Middle East diplomacy, from which they had been effectively barred since Sadat's historic eviction notice. Despite evidence that Soviet technicians have been calibrating the radar for the Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles placed in Lebanon, Haig naively went to the fox to ask for help in the henhouse.

As might have been expected, the Soviets promptly took our chief diplomat into camp: After a week of reports that the Soviets might be helpful in restraining their client state, it became obvious that the Soviet mission to Damascus only stiffened Syria in its desire to end its Arab isolation. The Syrians became determined to show the Arab world that Israel could not count on American backing—or to become a victim of a losing war against Israel, and thereby to end its pariah status.

Not until late last week did it dawn on the secretary of state that he had been had by the Russians. At that time, The Great Backgrounder of Foggy Bottom told a select group of reporters that the Soviet role in the peace negotiations had been "actively destructive." He seemed surprised.

A third sign of softness came with the application of an old Carter administration maneuver: from the ambush of background, get angry with our ally for being at the place where the Kremlin tests American will.

•

DESPITE ISRAEL'S acquiescence to an American request of time to negotiate with the Soviet client, and despite a surprisingly pliant attitude toward the American compromise which was later rejected by the Syrians, some American policymaker felt it necessary to vent his spleen at our ally:

'The Israelis can no more afford the presence of Soviet missiles in Lebanon than Americans can afford them in Cuba; in each case, the Soviet move upset the security status quo.'

"There is reason for saying," wrote James Reston of The New York Times last week, "that President Reagan is not amused by Mr. Begin's first reaction to the new Washington administration's policies in the Middle East. He is irritated by the mounting Israeli campaign against his decision to sell the AWACs aircraft to Saudi Arabia, and appalled by Mr. Begin's personal attacks on Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany."

My colleague is too experienced and trustworthy a reporter to assess the president's innermost thoughts without a well-placed source. His "reason for saying," I presume, can only be that such a reading of the president's mind was given him on deep background by a high official.

"Sounds like the old vicar," I was told on shallower background by a different high source, who may be in a better position to understand Reagan's thinking. My insider leads me to believe that the cold Victorian fury of "we are not amused" is far from Reagan's style; that the president is not "irritated" by Israel's predictable concern about arms sales to the Saudis; and that "appalled" is hardly the Reagan reaction to the Begin comment about Chancellor Schmidt's cozying-up to the PLO. The source seeking to project an ominous presidential impatience with Israel may not have been the secretary of state, but that knock-your-ally line is indicative of the kind of wishy-washiness now emanating from the State Department.

NOBODY CAN FAULT an attempt to avert bloodshed. The Habib mission dramatized both Israel's reasonableness and America's realization that this has been a Soviet power play.

The Israelis can no more afford the presence of Soviet missiles in Lebanon than Americans can afford them in Cuba; in each case, the Soviet move upset the security status quo. Twenty years ago, President Kennedy—perceived as weak—had to bring the world to the brink of war to draw the line; today, if the Soviet probe in Lebanon reveals softness and weakness, a far more dangerous and direct challenge awaits Reagan.

The Israelis are prepared for opprobrium. The Syrians have everything to gain from "the war process"—victory if the missiles stay, or victimization if they are forceably taken out. With such condemnation automatic, and with the missiles only 35 miles from Israel's northern border, some Israelis are thinking of the "artillery option," moving land forces into Lebanon and destroying the missiles with long-range guns, and without sacrificing aircraft. While in Lebanon, they could help the Christians set up a defensible enclave and encourage PLO terrorists now shooting rockets into Israel to return to Syria.

We'll soon see how President Reagan responds to the Soviets' first test of his will. Unfortunately, only a few days after Russia's "actively destructive" part in urging Syria to war, Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin has been invited to the State Department for his avidly sought beginning of arms limitation talks. What could be a greater signal of softness?

Things get bigger, but results get smaller

By RUSSELL BAKER

HERE IS A CURIOUS new development in physics: As things become bigger and bigger, the results become smaller and smaller.

Note the phenomenon at work in oil. Oil companies grow and grow and become vast international conglomerates with revenues of billions and billions. What is the result? The cars served by these oil mammoths become smaller and smaller. Here is a classic instance of bigness producing littleness.

The phenomenon is also visible in cities. In New York, for example, the buildings where people work become increasingly gigantic while the apartments in which people live shrink down toward the size of prison cells.

The strange relationship between money and size has long been familiar. The more money a person amasses, the smaller that person becomes.

It is the poor who are the biggest and fattest. When people start to accumulate money they take to dieting. The poundage slips away. As their wealth becomes bigger and bigger, they grow smaller and smaller.

Shops that cater to the richest women, you may have noticed, rarely carry dresses larger than a size 8.

Restaurants follow the same law. More yields less. Go into the most expensive restaurant, the one where it's going to cost you $50 to get out, provided you don't have the wine or the a la carte bread or the butter or the fish knife and the escargot fork, and what are you served?

Not a rib-stuffing poundage of pasta or a tonnage of pork chops lost under a mountain of home-fries. Not in this restaurant. This restaurant is for people who have the biggest bucks in town.

What you get are three or four courses so light, so small, so tiny, so minuscule that they couldn't put an ounce on a hummingbird's hips.

WHAT IS THE BIGGEST thing in the world if not the Pentagon? And what is the problem at the Pentagon? If the present government in Washington can be believed, as the Pentagon spends more and more money every year, its ability to whomp the bejeebers out of foreign upstarts becomes smaller and smaller.

Though the Reagan people say you can't solve problems by throwing money at them, they plan to make an exception in this case and heave several hundred billion more at the Pentagon. Unless the law that more yields less proves wrong in this case, we'll probably end up with an Army, Navy and Air Force that can't whip Liechtenstein.

Movies become longer and longer, more and more costly to produce and more and more expensive at the box office. As a result, fewer and fewer movies are made and fewer and fewer of those that are made are as good as movies that used to be made when studios were turning out several hundred a year and charging a mere 50 cents to let you see them.

Books become fatter and fatter and contain less and less. The general rule of thumb about books is: The bigger the book, the less likely it is to hold your attention or rouse your brain.

Speaking of brains, the educational system, which has become bigger and bigger and bigger since World War II, now appears almost utterly incapable of producing an American who can tell Hecuba from Aruba, isoceles from Hercules or Natty Bumppo from Button Gwinnett.

The one thing that may be even bigger than the Pentagon, at least in the United States, is sex. Since the 1960s, sex has been spreading like crabgrass in August. Sex is now a multibillion-dollar business, according to the New York Times.

And what result would you expect? Exactly. The American family has been getting smaller and smaller.

SO HERE WE SIT in the dusk of the century of progress serving giant corporations in gigantic workshops. At the end of the day we get into our tiny little cars and return to our tiny little living quarters to be with out tiny little families.

Perhaps we will pick up a gigantic book and toil for hours in search for a mouse of an idea, or maybe we will go out to a $20 million movie that lasts three hours and sends us out wishing we had stayed home and watched the old Bette Davis flick on television.

Maybe we will stay home with television. Television is so big now, especially if you have cable. Think of it 587 channels to twist for and, most nights, nothing on any one of them worth looking at.

Well, maybe there's a new docudrama to help kill the week. That's the trick about docudramas. They take eight hours to tell a 90-minute story. They give you so much less for more.

We exist with one foot in Lilliput and the other in Brobdingnag, our lives split daily between the extremes of tininess and grotesque giantism, and everyone hungers, if only subconsciously, for a return of proportion, the human scale, the golden mean, the happy medium, which is to say for another century. The 18th perhaps, though nobody would be very happy back there either, with that awful dentistry and no electric lights. Still, how much schizophrenia is tolerable?

Responds to Ben

Dear Editor:

May I address this letter to "Ben," whose mob-incitant column of May 21 requires an antihypothesis.

According to you, Ben, "the 39 are a chauffeur-driven, Rolls Royce-owning" stereotype. You are out of date, Ben, and your analysis is out of joint. The houses you cite were bought before galloping inflation. If "the 39" sold them now, the buyers might indeed be the modern equivalent of the Rolls-chauffeur set, or they might be a group buying for speculation. I presume you would then be satisfied, since the buyers would fit your J.P. Morgan criterion.

The Pine Cone/Outlook is apparently neither prejudiced in favor of the City Council nor on the side of "the 39." In the May 14 issue it reported that (1) the City Council denounced "the 39" for "severely damaging the character of the city by increasing disproportionately the amount of area devoted to visitors," and (2) that the Planning Commission is drafting a new ordinance "to encourage development of hotels and motels—" on almost wholly undeveloped land in Carmel, C-1-S.

The reason for the city's split personality on the subject of visitors is, as was also reported in the same issue, $1 million annually it receives in taxes from motels and hotels.

There are plenty of people who would like to come to Carmel for one or two weeks with their families, but who do not feel they can afford hotel-motel, thrice-a-day restaurant costs. So they choose short-term vacation rentals, and almost nobody is allowed 30-day vacations.

Doesn't the city have room in its philosophy for them? And while the city planners are preparing permission for 550 second kitchens for low-income residents in Carmel, how about some consideration for residents retired on incomes considered adequate ten years ago? Does the city really want to regulate them out of extra income?

One more point ought to be considered. Empty houses are such hazards that fire insurance is invalidated after 30 days. Empty houses also invite burglary. Wouldn't the more-frequently vacant houses offer a potentially greater expense to our fire and police departments? Or would you insist, Ben, that we adopt your lifestyle whether or not we are identical to you in position?

Opposes special tax

Dear Editor:

Have you stopped beating your wife? This frustating question illustrates perfectly the position we voters in the CSA 43 have been put into with the special tax election, Measure N.

The last sentence in the Argument in Favour of Measure N reads: "A 'No' vote means that you want the present level of fire protection service reduced." Written by Mr. Jim Neill, Chairman of the Advisory Committee, CSA 43.

No, we don't want the service reduced! We really expect it to remain the same. Such protection we assume is afforded as part of our property tax payments. Along with fire protection, security also, is something citizens expect for honourably paying their taxes. Where does the money then go if not to protect citizens and their property?

This implied threat is reprehensible. Is this yet another pout-and-stamp-your feet exhibition from bureaucracy, who seem to still not have understood (or forgiven) the taxpayers for telling them to use our money wisely.

New council forms

Dear Editor:

At a meeting of the Carmel Valley Council on Saturday, May 23, 1981, 38 members and guests heard Ken Wood of the Citizens Advisory Committee present a plan for development of the Lower Coastal Plan of the Odello-Hudson-Riley property flanking Highway 1 south of Carmel.

They listened in disbelief to the supervisorial changes in recommendations made by 14 members who worked over a year and a half to arrive at a solution of a difficult problem, merging progress and development with protection of one of the most scenic areas of the California Coast.

It seems incredible that three supervisors, after a few moments of study, became instant experts, and invoked sweeping changes and additions to a viable plan and thereby provided for excessive development, contributed to the destruction of scenic beauty, and compounded an already intolerable traffic situation.

Not only were the CAC recommendations disregarded, but also those of the County Planning Department, County Planning Commission, and the California Coastal Act. Not too much imagination is required to envision the impact this development will have on this area. Three hotels, a market complex, sports center, convention center, homes, and vast areas of asphalt to support these unnecessary complexes. Is this an asset to a key scenic area? What happens to the thousands of traffic movements generated on one of the most heavily congested two-lane highways in the state?

Assuredly, progress and development are important, but they must be controlled intelligently. It would seem in the best interests of all concerned to accept the recommendation of a committee that has devoted countless hours of study and effort to reach a solution to a problem with which they are closely associated and most certainly are now experts, and not accept a plan changed, added to, and violating the basic concepts of the CAC, submitted by three supervisors in what seems like a total disregard of the will of their constituents. If this seems repetitive, I can but point out the many excellent coverages in various issues of the Pine Cone/Outlook, wherein the trend by the supervisors to totally disregard the will of the people is so clearly explained.

In conclusion, I would like to describe the Carmel Valley Council. It is an invited gathering of the chiefs/directors/officials of 14 organizations/associations in the Carmel Valley and adjacent areas, and represents in excess of 3,000 members. The council meets on demand for a particular occasion or when a specific issue is at stake and a platform is needed for the input, discussion, and dissemination of pertinent information to the respective groups.

At the meeting on May 23, the following were represented: Carmel Valley POA, Carmel Area Coalition, Carmel Meadows, Rancho Rio Vista POA, Hacienda Carmel, Lower Valley Advisory Committee, High Meadows, Carmel Views, Arroyo Carmel, Tierra Grande, Carmel Knolls, CSA 43, Division of Forestry and Monterey County.

Also speaking were Bruce McClain of the County Public Works Dept., concerning budget problems facing the county for their public works projects, including highways, and Tom Perkins of the Forestry Division and CSA 43 Fire District concerning the preservation of the fire protection we now enjoy and the importance of voting in the user fee election.

Zoning administrator to hear requests for setbacks

Monterey County Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon will consider several requests for setback reductions in public hearings scheduled for 1:30 p.m., Thursday, June 11.

John Loveday has requested a reduction in front and side yard setbacks for property in the upper Carmel Valley; Burt Harris has requested reductions in sideyard setbacks for his Del Monte Forest property; Knight O'Connor has asked for a reduction in side yard setbacks and an addition to lot coverage in the Carmel area; and Davis Factor has requested an addition to lot coverage and a reduction in rear year setback for a Carmel area residence.

Public hearings will be held at 2:10 p.m. on a request by Tani Moore of Big Sur for a horse riding operation, and at 2:35 p.m. on a request by the Monterey Peninsula Country Club for an addition to an existing golf cart storage building.

The zoning administrator conducts meetings at the county courthouse, Salinas.

Dear Editor:

For anyone who knows and loves the southern half of the designated Carmel Coastal Area (Carmel Point to Malpaso Creek), to read Kenneth Wood's discussion (Pine Cone/Outlook May 21) of the action taken by the board of supervisors is to weep. And these are tears of anger, not sadness.

One would have to search hard through history to find a parallel to the supervisors' ignoring of the advice given them by the Citizens Advisory Committee and their own planning commission.

Perhaps the bull-headedness of the French and British general staffs in World War I would serve. Those generals, by pursuing strategies and tactics 30 years out of date, butchered the flower of French and British youth by the hundreds of thousands.

Our supervisors, by awarding of hotel complexes, conference and sports centers — like some giant Monopoly game — seem to be living in an expansionist California of the 1950s.

Reading about the "Mini shopping center and sports complex" next to Highway 1 just south of the Carmel River on the Odello property, makes the Carmel citizen wonder if Madame Chairman Shipnuck and her Merry Band ever got out of their highly-upholstered executive chairs and took a look at the ground whose favors they so freely dispensed.

The supreme irony of this outrageous capitulation lies in its language. Even as they are increasing densities by 58 to 100 percent over the CAC and Planning Commission recommendations, the supervisors have the gall to promise further increases in use intensities if "such increase can be demonstrated to be for the public benefit".

Heaven save us from such "public benefit," or can the Coastal Commission be counted on to introduce sanity into our little world gone mad?

Traffic was inching

Dear Editor:

During Memorial Day weekend I was strolling around Carmel Point when my eye was caught by what looked like a centiped inching up Highway 1 across the bay. It was a continuous stream of cars creeping along bumper to bumper. What a portent of things to come if a hotel and conference center are actually built on the Hudson-Riley property, with an entrance directly across from Point Lobos!

Add to this the proposed hotel, fruit stand, and restaurant on the Odello East land, and it's quite possible we will have a continuous traffic jam on our hands.

The transportation problem is but one result of these inappropriately large developments. In this area of potentially serious water problems, where will the water come from to meet the needs of tourists occupying these hotels — out of your allotment during the next drought!

When the Board of Supervisors overrode the carefully balanced recommendation of the Local Coastal Planning committee, they drastically altered the future for all of us. I don't know if it's too late, but I would strongly urge all who share these concerns to write to: Robert Garcia, Chairman, Central Regional Coastal Commission, 701 Ocean Street, Santa Cruz, CA 95060.

Opposes fire user fee

Dear Editor:

Memorial Day should also remind us that the Civil War was not fought to free the slaves, but to ravish Southern landed aristocracy and thus their political power. This was the policy of the "Radicals" of the Republican Party which emerged at war's end. The presidents who opposed this policy, known as Reconstruction, were Lincoln, Johnson and Grant. These, respectively, were murdered, impeached and slandered.

In England at the same time, Disraeli campaigned for a broader voting base. With this, enough votes were mustered to pass on inheritance tax, which gradually confiscated the wealth of England's hereditary landed nobility and thereby, their remaining political power.

In 1912, the Radicals moved into the Democratic Party, financed Teddy Roosevelt to split the Republican vote and elect Wilson. From 1879 to 1935 gold stood at $20.67 per ounce. But the Radicals involved us in wars to make their world safe for Communism, passed income and inheritance taxes, "social" spending programs, worthless foreign loans to cannibals, and debased our currency with "Federal Reserve notes", the equivalent of Greenbacks, to cover ever larger budget deficits.

From 37¢ in purchasing power in 1865 the dollar reached par in 1879 after the Greenbacks had been retired. Our present dollar stands at 4¢. Our corporations and bureaucracy have been flooded with affirmative action incompetents, the equivalents of the renegades of the First Reconstruction. Responsible Americans are experiencing the Second Reconstruction.

The Fire User Tax is a keystone of this policy as it vaults over Prop. 13. Affluent, educated Americans supported it. You can bet the Radicals designed it.

Supervisorial Hassle

Dear Editor:

There is a very minor mud-slinging hubub in one of our more sociable influential supervisorial districts. Although there may not be any fuzzy letter-of-the-law excuses for not reporting your friendly neighbor's blacktop layer cake or where you rub on your Carmel Valley membership suntan lotion. Let's all stay rational about this: "No-Teapot Dome-Scandal-at-all!"

This is a very, very, small, friendly, homogenous, breaking of bread and sipping of the imported spirits area. It is impossible not to be congenial and accomodating to each other — that's just the way it is here in our Paradise Lost.

Who, if any, of the former befores, or afters, can cast the first champagne bottle; which would be more than interesting in the confines of the Brown Act (or the censored Mann Act).

Gentlemen, I propose a truce — and a solution. I believe our young Atlas has learned a public representative lesson and will be a better man in the long haul, if allowed to continue in office. I thus propose an open competition between our two Anglo-Saxon knights. This would be for charity and held in our famed Urban Renewal Dragons Plaza. After the appropriate amount of Homemade Red consumption, we would have a running, swimming in the bay, and peanut butter pizza eating contest, then we would all say our sorrys, shake hands and get rip-roaring drunk, too!

Supervisors made mistake

Dear Editor:

I am highly displeased with the Board of Supervisors for nearly ruining the Carmel Area Local Coastal Plan which was so carefully constructed by the Citizens Advisory Committee and endorsed by the County Planning Commission.

I am particularly disappointed in my friend, Supervisor Bill Peters. As our supervisor from this area, he has shown a surprising disregard of his constituents' feelings about the coastal zone south of Carmel.

I hope that the Coastal Commission will be able to correct this mistake made by the Board of Supervisors.

Another viewpoint on cancer treatment?

Dear Editor:

For anyone who wishes to have another point of view regarding the treatment of cancer, may I suggest the following book The Death of Cancer by Dr. Harold Manner?

This gentleman appeared on Howard Ruff's T.V. program Ruff House, and at the end, Mr. Ruff said, "I know that if anyone in my family ever got cancer, we'd come to you."

However, my personal choice would be the Hippocrates Health Institute in San Diego.

By AL EISNER

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS almost adopted a very tough river floodplain ordinance the other day (see story on page A-2) that has upset many property owners in Carmel Valley. In the face of some stiff objections, the lawmakers sent the ordinance back to their staff to work out some of the problems in the proposed new law, but it seems apparent that the county will soon adopt long-overdue legislation to protect the river.

Every few years, the river defies the levees, banks, sandbags and good intentions of property owners and, encouraged by heavy rain, adopts an unpredictable course.

There are many cases on the books — and many more pending, I'm sure — regarding ownership of river and water rights. California's history is peppered with bitter controversies over riparian rights. After the damaging floods of the 1979-80 storm season, it became apparent that remedial legislation was needed.

The actions of one property owner or public agency can have a direct effect on the property of another. If one property owner, for example, adjusts the banks of the river alongside his property, the water will "bounce" across the river and start to erode the opposite bank.

Dredging or clearing the channel may seem innocent enough, but this can cause the river to run more swiftly, enabling it to erode vegetation more quickly.

Trees that are felled near the banks can be swept away by surging water and lodge against bridges or other obstructions, causing widespread damage.

The county now wants to regulate such activity within a 200-foot corridor along each side of the river. It would ban virtually all construction within this corridor. Some building, presumably, would be permitted with a use permit, but only if it would be deemed not to have a harmful effect on neighboring properties.

The adoption of such an ordinance has been discussed for many years. It is actually written in as part of the new Carmel Valley Master Plan. It should not have come as a surprise to property owners, whose agents or representatives have been monitoring hearings on the Master Plan.

Maybe they felt the axe wouldn't really fall. Well, it's about to come down, and anyone who is worried about it had better speak up now — before it's too late.

We can no longer allow individual property owners to do whatever they please with the river that flows through their property. On the other hand, legitimate rights of individual property owners should be protected. We hope the county will be even-handed in its approach.

The Mayor's Report

Be careful with 911

By BARNEY LAIOLO

HAVING COMPLETED my review of the agenda for the next Council meeting coming Monday, June 1, 1981, I would like to comment on a few happenings.

It has been brought to my attention that some of our residents have been using the emergency number 911 to call and inquire about an alarm sent out via our siren at the fire station.

When 911 is used for informational purposes, I am certain that the general public is unaware of what happens. With the hope that this practice will cease let me explain the happenings that occur. In the first place, whenever a call is placed to 911, it immediately ties up that line so that if an actual emergency needed to be reported, that call would be held up until the line is cleared. There could well be another emergency following the original call and if the line were not free it could mean the difference between getting help to someone and the loss of valuable response time.

Secondly, the dispatcher at the police station is very busy when any alarm is sounded, making certain that all units involved are notified. This means telephone calls and radio dispatching at the earliest possible time. If the dispatcher has to answer inquiry calls, it slows down the whole operation. I ask, therefore, that anyone wishing information regarding emergencies wait for a reasonable amount of time after the sounding of the siren to place their call. Please use the following numbers for these inquiries: Police — 624-6403; Fire — 624-1718. Both of these nubmers are listed under the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea on page 22 of the June 1981 Telephone Directory. Thank you for your cooperation!

DURING PUBLIC SCHOOLS Week I was unable to visit the schools because I was ill. However, during the past week I have attended the following school and youth activities. On Thursday evening it was my pleasure to attend the festivities at Sunset Center welcoming the new principal of the Carmel High School, Marsha Kading. This was very well planned and most enjoyable for all who attended. I am looking forward to working with Mrs. Kading on our developing recreation program.

On Friday morning the children of Woods School, under the direction of their teachers performed the 31st Annual May Pole ceremonies. It was very inspiring to see the excellence with which the dances were performed. It was rewarding to see the self-discipline shown by all students and the respect for each other's efforts. The leadership qualities that are being developed is proof of cooperation between parents, school and students.

To follow up, Saturday morning I was pleased to be asked to represent the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea at the opening ceremonies for the Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts of America's yearly Scout-o-Rama. This function brings together members of these groups from the Monterey area. After the opening ceremonies welcoming all, a parade led by the U.S. Army Band from Fort Ord marched around a greater part of El Estero Park. Each troop then took its assigned place to compete in a variety of skills learned in scouting. This develops leadership qualities and teaches love for country and its meaning.

SUNDAY WAS A FUN DAY at Laseun Field next to the Carmel Mission where Youth Baseball Family Day took place. There were several booths set up for games of chance as well as organized baseball games for family members. Good food and beverages added to an enjoyable afternoon.

One of the best sports who donated his time (and dignity) was Officer Pullen who allowed himself to be dunked in the dump tank to help raise money for the league.

In closing, I want to commend the parents and merchants for their strong support of this constructive youth activity.

Smiling for youth . . . our future leaders,
Mayor Barney

Singer Maria Muldaur to perform here

Maria Muldaur, singer of jazz, pop, folk, gospel and southern-based rhythm and blues songs, will perform on Saturday, June 6 at 8 p.m. in Sunset Center, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel.

Born and raised in Greenwich Village in New York City, she was exposed to many different music styles in the neighborhood — bluegrass, folk, blues guitar and accordian. She described her growing years as a "non-stop hootenanny."

After graduating from high school, she traveled to North Carolina, where she learned to play fiddle from Appalachian artist Gaither Carlton and sat in on his nightly family singing sessions.

At 21 she joined her first band, Even Dozen Jug Band, which included John Sebastian and Steve Katz. Her second band, Jim Kweskin Jug Band, included her then-husband, Geoff Muldaur.

After six successful years, the Kweskin band broke up, and Geoff and Maria moved to Woodstock and recorded two albums, Pottery Pie and Sweet Potatoes. After the marriage broke up, Maria made her first solo album, Maria Muldaur; the album and single off the album, Midnight at the Oasis, became gold hits.

In her next two albums, she explored different muscial styles. In Waitress in a Donut Shop, she added jazz, pop and folk, and in Sweet Harmony added gospel and southern-based rhythm and blues.

After these two albums, Maria decided to change her lifestyle and moved from a big city to the redwood forests of Marin County. She assembled a band of local musicians from the Bay Area and played weekends in clubs, roadhouses, concert halls, up and down the West Coast, never straying too far from home and her family. The result of this lifestyle change was the album Southern Winds.

Maria describes her latest album, Open Your Eyes, as her "strongest and most artistically rewarding work yet." She explains, "My depth of expression is growing, my voice is more relaxed and it's getting heavier as I get older."

Saturday's show, sponsored by Rochelle Productions, will also feature Cory Korgorian, local guitarist and pianist, whose style has been compared to that of Elton John.

Tickets are $7.50 and $6.50 and are available at Recycled Records and Record Cove in Monterey; Do Re Mi Records and Carmel Music in Carmel; and Gadsby's Music in Salinas. All seats are reserved.

SULTRY, energetic singer Maria Muldaur, whose hit song Midnight at the Oasis became a gold record, will perform on Saturday, June 6 at 8 p.m., Sunset Center, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel. Her repertoire includes jazz, pop, folk, gospel and southern-based rhythm and blues. All tickets are reserved and cost $7.50 and $6.50.

At Sunset

Concert will honor the late Fritz Wurzmann

A free concert will be given in honor of the late Fritz Wurzmann of Carmel, Sunday, June 7 at 3 p.m. at Sunset Theater.

The concert is under the aegis of four musical organizatons in whose establishment and development Mr. Wurzmann played a significant role: the Carmel Music Society, the Carmel Bach Festival, the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula and the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra.

Performers will be pianist Ingrid Jacoby, who won the recent Carmel Music Society competition; the Bartok Trio (cello, piano and clarinet) which was the winner of the 1981 Chamber Music Society competition; singer Marie Gibson and her accompanist, Ralph Linsley, who have a long association with the Carmel Bach Festival; and a chamber orchestra from the Monterey County Symphony, conducted by Haymo Taeuber.

The organizations are accepting contributions to offset the cost of the free concert. They may be sent to Sunset Center, P.O. Box 5066, Carmel, 93921.

Cooperative gallery opens in Valley

To be known as the Carmel Valley Cooperative Gallery, it is located next to the Craft Center behind Will's Fargo in the Village Center on Carmel Valley Road.

RENEE McCLUE, winner of the $100 first prize in an art contest sponsored by the Craft Cetner in Carmel Valley, is shown with her winning canvas, Mother and Son. She was awarded the prize at a reception to mark the opening of a new gallery named the Carmel Valley Cooperative Gallery. Miss McClue lives in Carmel.

Membership in the gallery will be required in order to exhibit. Membership is available to all artists in Monterey County.

Carmel resident Renee McClue won the prize for her oil entitled Mother and Son. Thirty contestants submitted 66 paintings.

Story hour for children at library

The Children's Department of Harrison Memorial Library will sponsor a story program for older children on Thursday, June 4 from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the Church of the Wayfarer, Lincoln and Seventh, Carmel.

Carmel Garden Club displays table settings at Sunset Center

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club will display table settings by Carmel antique dealers and interior decorators on Friday, Saturday and Sunday June 5, 6 and 7. The event will be held at Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., in the Bingham and Chapman rooms and on the adjoining terrace.

Tickets are $3.50 and will be available at the door. Funds raised by the garden club will be used for local conservation and landscaping projects within the Carmel area.

All 25 members of the club have been growing flowers for the table settings. They will also arrange the flowers.

There will be an invitational champagne preview on the terrace for the dealers, decorators, sponsors and guests of the garden club on Thursday evening, June 4 to mark the opening.

According to outgoing president, Jean Mitchell, the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club is just under two years old. The incoming president is Carol Stratton, who is also chairman of this event.

Tael Thomas to appear at Cherry Hall

The songs of Ituri Forest Pygmies, Spanish gypsies and American hobos will be among the offerings of poet Teal Thomas when he appears in Carmel Saturday, June 6.

His own poems and tall tales, including Calls of the Common Loon, will be offered, as well as the Irish word music of W.B. Yeats, works by Sappho and Heraclitus recited in the original Greek, and stanzas by the Aztec king Nezahualcoyotl, recited in Nahautl, a language of the ancient Aztecs.

Thomas is a San Francisco Bay area poet, musician, author and artist. The performance is sponsored by the Poetic Drama Institute of the Cherry Foundation Theatre Project.

SAN FRANCISCO poet Tael Thomas will present a one-man poetic theatre piece Saturday, June 6 at Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel at 8 p.m. The performance will include lyrics in Greek, sayings of Ituri Forest Pygmies, Hawaiian rain and turtle chants and poems and tall tales by Thomas.

At Hartnell College

'Man of La Mancha' opens Friday

Hollywood actor Bruce Tuthill will join The Western Stage of Hartnell College Theatre for its seventh season of summer entertainment.

Tuthill will play the role of Don Quixote in Dale Wasserman's Man of La Mancha Friday, June 6 at the Hartnell Theatre, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas.

A professional actor working out of Los Angeles, Tuthill has appeared on Tenspeed and Brownshoe, Stone, Rockford Files, Baa Baa Blacksheep, The Young and The Restless and Sonny and Cher.

Tuthill also has extensive opera background; he has been involved with the Los Angeles Opera Repertoire, The American Opera Company, the Comic Opera Theatre, and the Civic Light Opera.

Locally he has appeared with the Circle Theatre, Carmel Barnyard Theatre and the Wharf Theatre.

The set design for the Man of La Mancha production is far more elaborate and detailed than any for the play attempted in this area, according to the theatre group. It was designed by Robert Zeier of Hartnell.

Tickets for all Western Stage summer productions are now on sale. Prices are $6-$8. Performances are at 8 p.m. Sunday matinee performances are 2 p.m. Man of La Mancha will run June 6 and 7, June 10-14 and June 17-21.

Trout in aspic at the Cook's Club

Cold poached trout in aspic, pommes en chemise, and empanadas are among the international fare which the Cooks' Club will show how to prepare June 6 to June 9.

All demonstrations are at The Peppercorn Restaurant in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. Demonstrations are scheduled between 10 a.m. and 12 p.m. and from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. except for the Mexican empanadas dinner demonstration. There is no charge to attend the classes, except for the Mexican dinner.

On Saturday, June 6 the club will demonstrate the art of preparing cold poached trout in aspic, with flower decorations.

On Sunday, June 7, you can learn how to make pommes en chemise (apples in shirts). These are stuffed baked apples in a pastry crust.

On Tuesday, June 9 the club will prepare a complete Mexican dinner of empanadas (meat-filled hors d'oeuvres), ensalada de ejotes y jicama (Mexican salad with string beans), tomales, and pechugas de pollo con rojos (chicken breast with fresh pablano chilis with a cheese and sour cream sauce), chili rellenos, and queso de napoles (flan).

The preparation will begin at 5:15 p.m. The dinner will be served at 8:15 p.m. The cost is $14 with wine. A second person may eat for $7.

For more information phone 625-0100.

Surfers, windsurfers to compete on Carmel Beach

Carmel Beach will be the scene of surfing and windsurfing competitions Saturday and Sunday, June 6 and 7, from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Sponsored by the Ocean Pacific Swimwear Company, competitors of all ages may participate in the events, which will include "boogie boarding."

Grand prize for best overall competitors will be a custom Sunshine Freestyle surfboard. Gift certificates and surfing accessories will also be awarded.

Awards will be presented at the Rancho Canada Country Club on Carmel Valley Road at 9 p.m.

HOLLYWOOD ACTOR Bruce Tuthill opens the summer season for the Western Stage Hartnell College Theatre as Don Quixote in Man of La Mancha, Saturday, June 6 at 8 p.m. at the college theatre, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. For reservations phone Salinas 758-1221.

All the plays were written by CET director Marcia Hovick. Admission is free.

Summer fashion show slated in Big Sur

The Ventana Hotel Resort will kick off the summer season with a free fashion show Friday, June 5 at 2:30 p.m.

The show will be on the restaurant-terrace of the hotel at Big Sur on Highway 1. It will include custom-designed originals by German-Hungarian designer Ilonka.

Ilonka uses natural fibers such as cotton and raw silk. Her fashions are classically simple. Featured pieces will be tunics and two-piece shirts and skirts, sizes eight to 14, and sundresses in country prints that are suitable for year-round wear.

In collaboration with her, Melan Lussier has produced a collection of handpainted clothes with farm animal, sea shell and jungle motifs. Melan, a local artist, has painted on clothing for 10 years.

Handpainted silk originals by Bill and Nancy Edgar also will be shown, plus a wide range of Pendleton wools and Cacharel selections and all natural fiber clothing for men.

Clothing featuring the Japanese influence by designers Ellen Bapp, P.J. Hireyashi and Linda Taiko Ito also will be shown.

Music Corner

Wurzmann memorial concert

By LYN BRONSON

THE LATE FRITZ WURZMANN, a long-time resident of Carmel who died last December at the age of 84, was overheard a few years ago saying in his very slow and heavily-accented manner "I have never been afraid of anybody." And it was true. He always spoke his mind, and he always spoke the truth as he saw it. His devotion to musical causes was similarly unwavering and uncompromising.

To honor the memory of Mr. Wurzmann and the impressive contribution he made to the musical life of the Monterey Peninsula, there will be a memorial concert on Sunday, June 7, at 3 p.m. in Sunset Center Theater in Carmel.

Four musical organizations, the Carmel Music Society, Carmel Bach Festival, the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula and the Monterey County Symphony will each present a soloist or an ensemble group in a rich and varied program of classical music to honor Mr. Wurzmann.

THE CARMEL MUSIC SOCIETY will present 21 year-old pianist Ingrid Jacoby, a student a USC in Los Angeles and a recent finalist in the Carmel Music Society's Young California Artist Competition. Miss Jacoby will play the Busoni transcription of the famous Chaconne from the Partita for Unaccompanied Violin in D Minor by J.S. Bach. Mrs. Wurzmann admired Miss Jacoby's performance of this work in the recent auditions and felt that it would be a most fitting tribute to her husband. Mr. Wurzmann was a charter member of the Carmel Music Society and a member of the board of directors for over fifty years. Mr. Wurzmann took it upon himself to raise funds on the behalf of the society from a wide vairety of local businesses. No one has ever tallied the total amount of funds he raised over the years, but it was a very substantial sum.

The Carmel Bach Festival will be presenting soprano Marie Gibson, assisted by pianist Ralph Linsley, in two arias by Bach, Mein glaubiges Herze and Bist du bei mir, followed by one of Schubert's most deeply felt songs, Die Allmacht. Miss Gibson, presently adjunct professor of music at Stanford University, has been associated with the Carmel Bach Festival for many years, as has her assisting pianist, Ralph Linsley. Mr. Wurzmann was a very loyal supporter and past president of the Bach Festival.

The Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula will be presenting the Bartok Trio, winners of the Florence Allen Award at the Society's 1980 auditions, in a performance of Stravinsky's Histoire de Soldat. The Bartok Trio consists of Curt Homan, viola; Nancy Mathison, clarinet, and Anne Albuquerque, piano. Mr. Wurzmann was a charter member of the Chamber Music Society, and his wife, Marjorie Wurzmann, appeared as pianist in a performance of the Schumann Piano Quintet in one of the society's concerts in 1956.

THE MONTEREY COUNTY SYMPHONY will present a performance of Mozart's Eine kleine Nachtmusik performed by a chamber orchestra of 15 musicians under the direction of Conductor and Music Director Haymo Taeuber.

Mr. Wurzmann's role in rescuing the Monterey County Symphony in its early years is a tale that can bear retelling. In 1954 the symphony had a disastrous season. Low in funds, the orchestra had not been able to obtain a conductor of the calibre needed to maintain high standards in their programming, and the quality declined to the point where by the symphony's last concert of the 1954 season, the audience had shrunk so much that beyond the subscription audience only three single tickets were sold.

Mr. Wurzmann had been a member of the orchestra board from its inception, but at this crisis point in its history, he was elected president of the Orchestra Association. In the first few weeks after he assumed office during the summer of 1954, a trained and experienced conductor, Gregory Millar, was appointed and initial steps were taken to raise operating funds.

In the year before Mr. Wurzmann's presidency, approximately $2,500 was received in donations. During his first year this increased to $7,500. Within two years the benefits of his leadership had become quite noticeable. With its new conductor, the orchestra's performing standard improved, its repertoire was extended, the subscription audience grew rapidly, and concerts for school children were initiated in Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove and Salinas — five concerts in all, with a total attendance near 4,000.

Mr. Wurzmann in his first term as symphony president suggested that the association needed a symphony guild, and he charged board member Marjorie Oren, now the symphony's librarian, with this responsibility. The guild grew to significant proportions throughout the years and is largely responsible for the symphony's strong condition today.

ALTHOUGH MR. WURZMANN was not musical himself, his childhood home in Frankfurt, Germany, was saturated with music. Everyone sang or played an instrument. One of his aunts was among the last piano pupils of Franz Liszt at Weimar. After graduating with a degree in engineering from the University of Stuttgart, he worked in Germany for General Electric and later in the United States for Westinghouse.

He came to the Monterey Peninsula in 1927 and quickly established a business under his own name which sold office equipment and business machines. In addition to his activities in support of music, he also found the time to be a director of the World Affairs Council and the Monterey History and Art Museum.

So, we can see that Fritz Wurzmann, in essence, brought a very good mind and lots of organizational ability with him when he settled in Carmel. We are fortuante that when we needed his talents he was here.

Wine Connoisseur

A wonderland for wine lovers

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

How come?

Our inexpensive daily table wine is the best in the world.

About all you can say about the vin ordinaire in Europe is that it's wet, and helps wash down the daily food.

Italian and French consumers tote up 30 gallon-per-capita statistics. The Frenchman and the Italian buy local wine without any brand or varietal consideration. It's sold by the liter, by the degree of alcohol, or by its color, white or red. That's it. Since recorded time, householders in the Mediterranean basin have thought about wine the same way they do about bread and oil — basic groceries.

Nowhere in the U.S.A. — including California and Washington, D.C., our greatest wine-consuming areas — do Americans get anywhere near that 30 gallon figure. We've just barely moved up to 2 gallons per capita per adult, with a 5 gallon figure in the Golden State.

All the studies made in our country about the non-wine buyer point first to his abstinence for religious reasons (which will not change) and secondly to his ignorance about the product (which is being remedied by a rapidly expanding number of wine writers, wine courses and educational programs in colleges, gourmet groups, etc.). Few are non-wine buyers because of economic reasons.

But even years ago, England's leading wine-writer, Hugh Johnson, speaking about our inexpensive table wines, specifically Gallo Hearty Burgundy and Chablis Blanc, said that we were blessed with having wines of such quality flowing as if from artesian wells!

And we're not limited to our own indigenous wines for daily table service, as is every local market in Italy and France. Indeed, our supermarkets offer wines from all over the world—at affordable prices. And they are much more than wet. They have breed, character, and technological brilliance, without which they won't sell.

•

WE WRITE THIS ON the eve of our departure for a three-week journey through the winelands of Sicily and Italy, from which by far the greatest volume of wine is exported to America. More than half of it is fizzy Lambrusco, but it is wine, after all, and who's to say it isn't good to all those people pouring it and loving it!

But there's no doubt about it, in the good white wine category in 1.5 liter jugs, Bolla and Folonari Soave have a corner on the market. Both are always dependable, good, dry and refreshing.

The red wines we've mentioned here before, but just in case you missed it, Corvo Red Wine from the Duca di Salaparuta, and Segesta from Diego Rallo and Figli are good buys in daily table wine classes for under $5. An extraordinary buy is the 1976 Travaglini Spanna di Piemonte at $3.99. This is a round, full-bodied wine of Nebbiolo breed, the same grape that accounts for the famous Barolo wines. Crosse and Blackwell imported this wine from the small village of Spanna, for which the wine is named. It's lovely country, and obviously, the Nebbiolo thrives.

There are good Romanian wines in our supermarkets, the Torres wines from Spain, Corbans wines from New Zealand, all in the under-$5 brackets. The variety is more than medieval monarchs or Roman Caesars ever could have commanded.

We were prompted to make this appraisal of daily table wines by a letter from a reader, not only wanting to know about good affordable wines, but about books which would give him basic information about California wines.

There are three good handbooks currently available. The Pocket Encyclopaedia of California Wines by Bob Thompson, Simon and Schuster, New York 1980, and The Connoisseurs' Handbook of California Wines by Charles Olken and Earl Singer and Norman Roby, Alfred A. Knopf($4.95) 1980, are two old standbys. And champagne authority William I. Kaufman has just authored his own Pocket Encyclopedia of California Wine, published by The Wine Appreciation Guild of San Francisco.

With any one of these three books, even in the most casual reading, the doors to tasting opportunities open, and the wine shelves of supermarkets will become less mysterious. All of which underscores once more our opening premise about the good fortune of American wine consumers.

POSTSCRIPT to vacationers who are in San Francisco and wine country-bound: Here are only a few words when a whole volume is needed, but we write them to our readers as we would talk to a friend. Don't miss Maxwell's Plum in Ghirardelli Square. In all the world there's never been a restaurant like this!

You're bound to hear, "Vulgar! Gaudy! Bizarre!" but don't be put off. Try and remember how you loved the circus when you were young. It's showtime in a setting as make-believe as the Kingdom of Oz. There you are, right in the middle of it, enjoying three pates and the best rack of lamb in Cumberland sauce you ever tasted, with Jordan 1976 Cabernet Sauvignon, or Robert Mondavi 1978 Napa Valley Chardonnay.

The ceilings are stained glass and rosewood, there are more crystal chandeliers than you can count. There's a disco, and a pressed burnished copper bar. It seats 700, and it'll blow your mind!

On opening night, its creator, Warner Le Roy wore a gold lame cape/coat with appliques of multi-colored flowers, made by Yves St. Laurent, while the rest of us were dull clods in black ties and tuxedos. Don't listen to the skeptics and crepe hangers who say San Francisco won't like it. If that's so, they've lost the spell of wonder that makes this grim life of assassins and inflation bearable. Maybe it's a little expensive, but the luxury of living in a make-believe setting, if only for hours, is well worth it.

Choraleers to give concert Sunday

Songs from the four seasons will be presented by the Monterey Peninsula Choraleers Sunday, June 7 at 3 p.m. at the Monterey Conference Center, 1 Portola Plaza, Monterey.

The choraleers, a group of 40 women, have been together 16 years. They perform free programs for service clubs, retirement homes, social, civic and business functions and convalescent hospitals.

They will sing Autumn Leaves, It Might As Well Be Spring, Button Up Your Overcoat, By the Sea, The Summer Knows, My Funny Valentine, and other songs from their program, entitled A Touch of Seasoning.

The concert is free. For more information phone 649-3927.

Big Sur Equestrian Club plans activities

The Big Sur Equestrian Club (formerly the Big Sur Trails Club) has recently registered as a member of the California State Horseman's Association and will begin its meetings with more than a dozen members. Officers are Douglas Madsen, founder and president; John Larmour, secretary; and Jeff Norman, treasurer.

The club is offering English, western and bareback riding and horse insurance. Members may also buy hay and feed, and tack and horse supplies through the club at a reduced cost.

The club meets monthly at Andrew Molera State Park in the old corral area, which has eight miles of trails. Future activities will include pack trips and a Fourth of July parade and rodeo.

Lecture slated at Cherry Hall

The work of Teilhard de Chardin, French paleontologist and philosopher, will be the subject of a lecture Saturday, June 6 at the Carl Cherry Foundation.

The lecture will be presented by Sister Catharine Knudsen, Teilhardian scholar at 10 a.m. at the foundation, Fourth and Guadalupe, Carmel.

Coin Club to hold show

The Monterey Peninsula Coin Club is sponsoring a free coin show on Sunday, June 7, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Carmel Holiday Inn on Rio Road and Highway One.

Everyone is welcome to bring coins or paper money for a free appraisal. Investment quality coins will also be available.

FROM CONSUMER REPORTS

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

HOW DO YOU choose a really good cassette tape deck? By its price? By its features? Either way, according to Consumer Reports electronics experts, who tested 20 models priced between $280 and $430 (before discounts). Fifteen of the decks performed nearly equally: Differences in their sound reproduction were small — and so were the differences in their test scores.

Since fine performance was the norm with most of the tested decks, which one you choose may depend simply on the size of the discount you can get. Audio components often sell 20 to 30 percent below list. But unless you find an irresistible bargain price, CR's engineers recommend that you base your choice on your preference for particular features. Here are the features to consider.

Record-level indicators are an indispensable guide to the strength of the signals you're putting on tape. Sets which have peak-level indicators can signal the short, loud bursts of music that can overload a tape, and this type of indicator was preferred by the engineers over the average-strength indicators.

Auto-set recording controls will analyze an incoming signal for about seven seconds and electronically set the proper recording level — a feature that generally worked well in the tests, although you may need some experience to take full advantage of it. Playback-level controls let you adjust the deck's playback level to match that at which you usually enjoy FM radio or your records, without resetting the receiver's volume whenever you switch to tapes.

Adjustable bias allows you to tailor the deck's frequency response to the tape used. Off-tape monitoring allows you to listen to what has gone onto the tape right as it's being recorded — a feature useful for live or important "one-shot" recordings.

Button-type controls that most decks have for record, playback, fast-forward, etc., are easier than levers to operate. The most convenient sets let you zip directly from one mode of play to another without bothering with the "stop" button. More sophisticated sets have controls that can cue to a preset point on the tape and then automatically stop or play. One model tested could show the time of day, turn the deck on and off at a preset time and show the time left on a tape. Whether or not you need or want all these extras is for you to decide.

The majority of the decks CU tested performed well enough to satisfy the needs of most hi-fi enthusiasts. The five top models were the Akai GXM50, Hitachi D75S, Onkyo TA2040, JVC KDA55J, and the Teac A660.

DEAR CONSUMER REPORTS: I received a new convection oven as a gift. Two of my friends who used to own convection ovens returned them because they said that using the ovens raised their electric bill. I don't want to use mine if it will increase my electricity usage that much. I thought these ovens were supposed to save energy. Don't they?

DEAR READER: When we tested convection ovens, we found that overall, a self-cleaning General Electric range used less energy than any of the convection models. Nevertheless, we would not think that the use of a convection oven would cause a significant change in one's electric bill.

A counter-top convection oven is an expensive supplement to a regular range oven, and for small jobs (heating a frozen dinner or baking a few potatoes), a toaster oven or counter-top broiler oven might do the job as easily and more efficiently.

60-MINUTE GOURMET

By PIERRE FRANEY

Enthusiasm for pasta

IF I HAD TO NAME the greatest revolution in my own taste since I came to America more than 40 years ago, it would probably be my enthusiasm for pasta. At almost every meal when I was a child, we dined on either rice or potatoes or, one of the most basic forms of pasta, noodles. The noodles (which were never referred to as pasta) were always served with any of several kinds of stews or ragouts: veal marengo, which is with tomatoes and mushrooms; chicken in Burgundy wine sauces; rabbit, hunter's style, and so on. But I don't recall ever having spaghetti, which is basic on American menus, and certainly not the more unusual forms of pasta like fettuccine and linguine.

My initiation into the many kinds and uses of pasta came during a trip with friends some years ago through Rome, Milan, Genoa and Florence. I was introduced to scores of sauces, including those made with many kinds of fish and shellfish, a fine ragout of rabbit or hare with broad noodles known as papardelle, and a marvelous walnut sauce known as salsa di noce served with stuffed dumplings known as pansoti.

Some of my favorite ways of preparing pasta are with vegetables in season, and one of these was borrowed from friend Vivian Collyer, an expert cook who caters from her home in Mountainside, N.J. At a recent birthday party she prepared a sauce of Gorgonzola cheese with pieces of asparagus that had been cooked al dente. The incredible thing about most of the sauces that I prepare is that they all can be made in minutes and, if the ingredients are ready to cook, in about the time it takes to cook the pasta.

A nice appetizer for pasta dishes -- a main course in itself -- is roasted sweet peppers with anchovies. For a less-than-an-hour meal, prepare the peppers and anchovies before you make the pasta dish.

PASTA WITH CHICKEN AND ASPARAGUS

1 skinless, boneless chicken breast, 1 pound; 1 pound fresh asparagus spears; 2 tablespoons butter; three-quarters pound linguine or fettuccine; salt and freshly ground pepper to taste; 3 tablespoons finely chopped shallots; 1 cup heavy cream; 1 dried hot pepper; 1⅛ teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg; 1¼ pound Gorgonzola cheese; 2 tablespoons chopped fresh tarragon or 1 teaspoon dried; 1½ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese.

1. Remove all sinews and soft cartilage from the chicken breast. Cut the breast into small strips about one and a half inches long and half an inch wide. There should about a cup and a half.
2. Peel and trim the asparagus. Cut off and discard any tough ends. Cut the asparagus on the bias into one and a half inch lengths. Drop the pieces into boiling water and drain. Set aside.
3. Bring enough water to a boil to cook the pasta when added. Add the pasta and cook to the desired degree of doneness.
4. Heat two tablespoons of butter in a casserole. Add the chicken strips and cook, stirring to separate the pieces, quickly. Add salt and pepper to taste. Cook about 30 seconds or just until the chicken changes color.
5. Add the asparagus and stir. Add salt, pepper and shallots and cook briefly, about 30 seconds. Add the cream, hot red pepper and nutmeg and stir.
6. Break the cheese into small lumps and add it. Cook just until the cheese melts. Add a generous grinding of black pepper and the tarragon. Stir. Drain the pasta and add to the sauce. Toss well. Serve with grated cheese on the side.

POIVRONS AUX ANCHOIS

(Sweet peppers with anchovy vinaigrette)

4 to 8 sweet green or red peppers; 8 to 16 anchovy fillets; 1 tablespoon finely minced garlic; 1¼ cup olive oil; juice of half a lemon; 1¼ cup finely chopped parsley; lemon wedges.

1. Preheat the broiler to high.
2. Line a baking tray with aluminum foil and arrange the peppers on it. Place about four or five inches from the source of heat and cook, turning occasionally, until the skin is slightly burnt and charred all over.
3. Hold under cold running water and pull away the skin of the peppers. Drain well. Cut away and discard the cores. Cut the peppers in half and scrape away the seeds.
4. Arrange equal portions of the peppers on four chilled salad plates. Arrange two to four crossed anchovies on each serving.
5. Blend the garlic, oil, lemon juice and parsley in a small bowl. Spoon this over the peppers and anchovies. Garnish each serving with lemon wedges.

Bridge

Delay drawing trumps

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When you have a weak doubleton in an unbid suit, the Blackwood Convention may not tell you what you need to know. If today's North has only one ace, South wants to know which ace it is.

Instead of bidding four notrump South bids four diamonds, showing the ace of diamonds and an interest in slam. North responds by showing the ace of hearts, just what South needs for the slam.

NO CINCH

The slam is no cinch. At the second trick declarer wins the heart shift with the ace and should ruff a club with the jack of spades before taking the ace of spades.

When the bad trump break shows up (there would be no problem if both defenders followed suit), South leads a low trump to win a finesse with the seven and ruffs another club with the queen of spades. Now South leads his last trump to finesse with the nine and leads the king of spades to draw trumps and discard his losing heart. Top diamonds take the rest of the tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: ♠ K 9 7 2 ♡ A Q 6 4 ◇ 5 2 ♣ Q J 8. What do you say?

ANSWER: Some experts would bid one heart, some would bid one club and many would pass. It is a borderline decision, and much depends on who your partner is and how good a player you are. If you are inexperienced, don't go out of your way to open a borderline hand with weak four-card major suits. You would be happy to open the hand if you had a fifth card in either major suit or if you had a singleton diamond and one more club.

Exercise and heart disease

By RALPH RETHERFORD, M.D.

MY GOAL OVER the past few weeks has been to make my readers so sick of hearing about cholesterol that they won't want to eat it anymore! Today we are going to be moving on to bigger and better things, namely, exercise and its relationship to heart disease.

Just about everybody knows nowadays that exercising is good for your heart, but not everybody knows what kind of exercise is good for your heart. I find when I tell my patients they should be on regular exercise programs, many of them reply that they are gardening or they play tennis or they go golfing three days a week. While these types of exercise are good for your general mobility and give you a sense of well-being, unless they are engaged in very strenuously they generally do not fall into the category of what we call aerobic exercise.

Aerobic exercise is the kind of sustained rhythmic repetitive activity that makes your cardiovascular system and your respiratory system work hard enough for you to get what is called a training effect. The training effect essentially means that your heart and lungs are being forced to adapt to an extra work load and are becoming stronger.

Those of you who do not like to jog will be happy to know that there are many other ways of getting good aerobic exercise. Recent research has shown that simply by walking one hour a day on the level at a reasonably brisk pace, you are able to achieve a good cardiovascular training effect. Just about everybody is able to walk, and if you have the time this is a wonderful way to enjoy the out-of-doors and have a pleasant relaxing experience that leaves you with a sense of well-being.

For those of you who are allergic to fresh air, an exercycle strategically placed in front of your T.V. set can be a very convenient way to obtain 20 to 30 minutes of aerobic exercise while you watch your favorite show. This has the advantage of convenience, safety, and the fact that it requires no special clothing or footwear. (You will find that a fan will keep you cool and comfortable on your exercycle and will make it much more pleasant.) Other forms of aerobic exercise that can be done in your living room include working on a minitrampoline called a Rebounder, or dancing vigorously in place (called aerobic dance and various other names.)

Swimming laps in a pool is an excellent form of aerobic exercise, and has the advantage of being easy on the knees, ankles and legs for those people who have joint problems. Any number of other sports qualify as being good aerobic exercise if they are played vigorously. These include tennis singles, racquetball, and others.

JUST WHAT ARE the benefits to the heart of an aerobic exercise program? The heart responds to the burden of vigorous exercise by increasing the volume of blood that is pumped with each stroke, so that the heart can do the same amount of work with fewer beats. This results in a slowing of the pulse rate, both at rest and for a given amount of exercise. The heart and blood vessels increase their ability to carry oxygen to the tissues. This means that a person in a high state of training will be able to do much more physical work before becoming exhausted.

What benefits does this increased conditioning bring us in our daily lives? Well, for one thing, we are able to do more without feeling tired. Even more important is the fact that people who are engaged in a regular exercise program develop a sense of physical and mental well-being as a spin-off from the extra physical activity. As you look in the mirror and see your body firming up, you feel more youthful and your self-image improves. In general, people who are exercising regularly have been found to handle the frustrations of daily living better than their sedentary counterparts, and they tend to feel less hostility. Exercise has been shown to be excellent medicine for depression, apparently because it releases natural chemicals in the brain called endorphins, which are a kind of natural tranquilizer. In addition, most smokers who take up an exercise program stop smoking. And, of course, one of the biggest benefits to our society of exercising is the fact that it burns up excess calories and helps us to lose weight. Exercise has other beneficial effects on our body's chemistry, including an increase in the "good" kind of cholesterol in our circulation called high-density lipoprotein. It also tends to decrease blood pressure somewhat, which reduces the tendency towards heart disease.

You can see this is a pretty impressive list of benefits that come to us through regular exercise. The next question is, if you do take up a regular exercise program, does this protect you from heart disease?

WHILE WE ALL would like to believe that if we take up a regular jogging program or some other form of aerobic exercise we are becoming immune to heart disease, unfortunately this does not appear to be the case. For example, in eastern Finland, where the economy revolves around the timber industry and most of the adult males are lumberjacks with high levels of physical activity, the rate of coronary artery disease is the highest in the world. It is interesting to note that the consumption of saturated fats and cholesterol is also the highest in the world. Obviously, exercise does not give immunity from heart disease.

Does it have a protective effect? Scientific studies conflict on this point. While there is little or no disagreement on the benefits of exercise as I have described them, there is considerable disagreement about whether heart disease can be prevented through an exercise program alone. Many studies show that if you compare two groups of individuals, one of which has increased amounts of exercise, members of the group that exercises have fewer heart attacks, fewer episodes of sudden death, and are more likely to survive a heart attack than their more sedentary counterparts.

However, there are many other studies which show no difference between groups that exercise vigorously and sedentary control groups. When the scientific data conflict in this fashion, it is difficult to draw any kind of definite conclusions about the protective effect of exercise. While it is not proven that exercising will prevent heart disease, the evidence is strongly suggestive, with many studies supporting this idea. This, combined with the benefits of improved self-image, weight reduction, smoking reduction, etc., leads us to the conclusion that it is prudent to engage in regular aerobic exercise. You will probably live longer, and you will certainly feel better.

The main point to be made here is that exercise by itself is not enough. While you will benefit from an exercise program alone, it becomes much more powerful as a preventive health measure when it is combined with a low-fat, low-salt, low-cholesterol diet. So the next time one of your friends says to you, "Oh, I don't have to watch my diet — I jog four miles a day and burn off any cholesterol that I eat," you can tell about the lumberjacks in eastern Finland who have the highest rate of coronary disease in the world.

TAKING CONTROL:
A CLASS FOR COMPULSIVE EATERS

This class explores food habits and the underlying emotional reasons for compulsive eating. Through discussion, fantasy, self-hypnosis and behavior charting women learn to acknowledge the problem, accept themselves, and take control of their eating.

The next class begins Thursday, June 11th at 7:30 and costs $125.00 for 12 sessions. Claudia Daniels, M.A., and Mary Niebel, M.A., are teaching the class.

For more information call Cypress Institute, 372-6242, or 624-0570.

Civilizing your dog

By JUDITH A. EISNER

PUPPIES ARE REMARKABLY egocentric little animals. Much as they love their humans, they love themselves more.

From the time a puppy is born, his entire being is dedicated to fulfilling his instincts and desires. At first, these instincts are for food and warmth, so the infant puppy nurses and sleeps all day long.

As the puppy matures, his eyes and ears open and he learns to navigate. He begins to store up information about the outside world; he begins to learn.

In addition to eating and sleeping, he is now learning to be a dog. Puppies at play together are actually practicing inherited canine behavior. They "play" at fighting and stalking and mating. It is said that puppies denied play with the opposite sex never develop into truly male or female dogs.

By the time you get a puppy, at approximately eight weeks of age, he has accumulated a lot of learning. He should know that humans are friendly, that they provide food and petting and playmates. What he may not yet know is that in return they demand certain things from the puppy.

Just as we don't expect obedience or responsible actions from our own infants, we don't expect them of very young puppies. But as human babies and canine alike grow up, there are rules to be learned and acceptable behavior patterns to learn. With puppies, as with babies, consistency and firmness and patience are the catchwords to successful training.

•

THERE ARE TWO kinds of dog training. One is formal obedience training that teaches a dog useful disciplines such as walking on a leash, sitting, lying down, coming when called, staying put on command. Every well-trained dog should know these lessons and should be able to obey them.

The second kind of training is what we refer to as "civilizing" the puppy and it concerns itself with turning that egocentric little beast into a well-behaved member of the family.

A dog may win every obedience degree granted by the American Kennel Club and still be an absolute hoodlum in the house. Sound incredible? It isn't. And it is never the fault of the dog, but always the fault of the owner.

A civilized dog never jumps up on people, except by invitation, if you wish him to. He never greets people by crashing lovingly into their chests or stomachs, or by patting at their clothes with muddy paws.

A civilized dog never begs for food at the table. He does not snatch or steal food when your back is turned.

A civilized dog stays off the furniture unless you want him on it. You cannot train a dog to do one thing some of the time and another thing the rest of the time. If you want your dog on the couch, that means that he will be welcome there whether or not you are in the room, and whether or not there is company in the house.

A civilized dog does not chew or tear or destroy your property. He does not filch shoes or gloves or scarves to tear into pieces when your back is turned; he does not sharpen his teeth on the piano leg either.

•

HOW DO YOU CREATE this paragon of canine virtue? You can create a civilized dog only if you want one. If you think it's perfectly all right to be bowled over by Poochie when you come home, you'll never be able to convince the dog that it's undesirable behavior.

If you can't resist his soulful eyes accusing you (of heartlessness) at the dinner table, you'll never be able to discourage him from begging.

If you think he has a right to share the sofa or bed, he'll certainly agree with you.

So, first of all, you have to decide what kind of dog you want. We know people who are absolutely delighted with their totally undisciplined, untrained, uncontrolled animals. Others expect more. And get it.

To teach your dog manners, you discourage undesirable habits and encourage good ones. Consistently. You convey to the dog your displeasure when he jumps up on people by knocking him off balance with your knee when he jumps up and enforcing this with "NO! Bad boy!" You encourage him to keep all four feet on the ground and kneel down to greet him.

When he begs, you find the words that convey your displeasure and order him from the table. "NO! Go lie down," might be the command. And you NEVER give him so much as a sliver from your plate. You insist that your guests resist the impulse as well. If you are consistent, eventually the dog will learn that he's not going to get anything, that you mean what you say.

You chase him off the furniture the first time he gets on it, lead him to his blanket or bed and pet him when he lies down there. And every time he tries to get onto the couch, you scold him until he gets the point.

Dogs don't like to be scolded; they want to be praised. If you have the strength of character to insist on proper behavior, plus the patience to enforce it, the dog will learn.

If you once let up and permit a lapse, you will have lost all the ground you gained. The dog won't believe you mean it next time you scold him and you will have created a confused dog who has learned only that he can get away with things if he's persistent enough. If you're not capable of persistence, you can be sure he will be!

SMALL-WORLD VIEW #1, an acrylic polymer collage on upson board, is one of a collection of works by Jean Halpert-Ryden now on view at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific St., Monterey. The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and on weekends from 1 to 4 p.m.

Jean Halpert-Ryden to exhibit collages at Monterey art museum

An exhibit of collages by Jean Halpert-Ryden will open at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art Saturday, June 6. Graphics from the permanent collection of the museum will also be included in the exhibit.

Jean Halpert-Ryden approaches the use of pasted papers in her collages in a variety of ways. The papers are sometimes colored with brush or roller, and they may be natural or dyed, commercially or hand-made, textured or smooth.

"Originally, they helped me to achieve more geometric, structured forms, in arrangements which an experienced hand using a free-flowing brush would not think of," states the artist, "but my love of nuance always wins out and the flat character of pasted papers is tempered with brush strokes applied below or above the paper."

"Each artist has a particular slot in time, to represent broadly or not. I choose to deal with our world, to try for credible yet poetic imagery which hopefully remains absorbing to the eye and mind and sensibilities. I strive for works which are broad, deep, and rich."

The artist was born and trained in New York but has been a resident of the San Francisco Bay area since 1949. Her work has been exhibited in museums and galleries in California, throughout the country and in Europe, and has won a number of awards.

The exhibition will continue until June 28. The museum is located at 559 Pacific St., Monterey. Hours are Tuesday through Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and weekends from 1 to 4 p.m.

Admission is free.

Fiesta marks birth of Monterey

The 211th birthday of the city of Monterey will be celebrated with a fiesta sponsored by the Monterey History and Art Association Saturday, June 6.

Women voters plan meeting

A panel discussion on the public assistance health initiative of Monterey County is scheduled for Thursday, June 11 at 12 p.m.

Sponsored by the League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula, the lunch meeting will be at the Pacific Grove Community Center, Junipero and 14th, Pacific Grove.

Lunch is $3.50. The meeting is free and open to everyone.

Panelists will be Dr. Robert Bowersox, Director of Health Services for Monterey County; James Ringrose, Director of Support Services for Monterey County; Dr. Donald Dubois; Ron Threatt; and a participating physician from the community.

For more information, phone 659-4463.

Dali sketch is displayed at gallery

At one time Dali, considered by some to be the greatest living artist in the world, had a studio in Carmel and was a guest of the Del Monte Lodge, according to records.

According to the Julie Gregory Gallery, he found the Carmel and Monterey areas conducive to his artistic temperament and enjoyed a very productive stay.

The gallery says several of Dali's finest early works were developed in this area, as he enjoyed the quiet and peace of the beaches.

The sketch at the gallery shows the development of the action of several portions of the torso. It was later developed into a part of his work entitled Leda Atomica, the gallery said.

The sketch and other works by the artist can be viewed at the gallery seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The works will be on exhibit until the end of June. For more information call the gallery at 625-2256.

COLUMBIA PARK BOYS ARE COMING

Carmel's annual summer guests will be with us again this month, and one reason for making this announcement is that adequate provision be made for a big demand for pies and other edibles dear to stomachs of the boys.

Over a hundred Columbia Park boys will arrive on June 12th to camp for a month or more.

OLD MURDER MYSTERY

A murder mystery of 50 years standing may have been solved this week with the discovery of a skeleton and a rusty rifle in the rough mountain country back of the Carmel Highlands.

The skull is pierced by a bullet hole in the side which is believed to have come from the rifle that was found lying beside the skeleton.

Old-timers in this section tell of a bitter feud between two ranchers who had on several occasions taken shots at each other. One morning one of the ranchers was last seen going in the direction of the Carmel Highlands. He was never seen again.

CITIZENS VS. LIVINGSTON

Off-street parking is of paramount importance to Carmel merchants if they wish to survive the competition of proposed fringe shopping centers, Planning Consultant Larry Livingston, Jr., said to members of the Citizens' Advisory Committee and the Planning Commission at Carmel High School last night.

As soon as the shopping centers on the outside of Carmel are operating, the Carmel merchants will be forced to put in off-street parking in order to survive, was his answer to the objections of Gordon Campbell and Paul McKinstry of the Citizens' Committee, to his central district plan.

Campbell felt that the proposed Ocean Avenue Mall and parking lots destroyed the conception of Carmel as a predominately residential town by catering to unwanted tourist trade.

THE FUTURE OF FOREST THEATER

Those benches — and a dozen other improvements need to be repaired to put the theater in operating shape.

"The situation is parallel to the one we faced at Sunset Center," stated Lois Renk last week. She is chairman of the Carmel Cultural Commission, which met at the theater to discuss its fate. "We either have to put money in or get out."

"I think it would be money down a rat-hole," said Commissioner Ashton Stanley.

DEVELOPER PLANS TO SELL 40-ACRE PARCELS

A 626-acre chunk of the former Parrot Ranch in Cachagua Valley will be sold off in 40-acre parcels in the next few months.

Owner John Gibbon confirmed this week that he is preparing to sell almost one-fourth of the 2580-acre ranch as soon as legal arrangements and some five miles of access roads have been completed.

Gibbon said his decision to sell part of his property stems from the March 10 decision of the Planning Commission to turn down his proposal for a vacation home cluster development, and lack of community action on his subsequent proposal that a master plan be drawn up for the area.

SUNSET THEATRE PROPOSAL

The Carmel Planning Commission took a hard look at a land-use committee report on the proposed Sunset Center Theatre, and decided to reconsider their concept approval in light of traffic and other problems that might be created by adding an auditorium.

The land-use committee report recommended an Environmental Impact Report be prepared on the project, but otherwise found the auditorium — either 800 or 1200-seat capacity — to be compatible with zoning requirements at the Sunset Cultural Center.

ORANGE CRATE ART EXHIBITED

Nearly 150 original label lithographs, part of a recent exhibit at San Francisco's de Young Museum, are being displayed. These labels exemplify all the fantasy that surrounded the citrus industry, California's second Gold Rush, in the early part of the century.

Backgammon

Inching forward

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

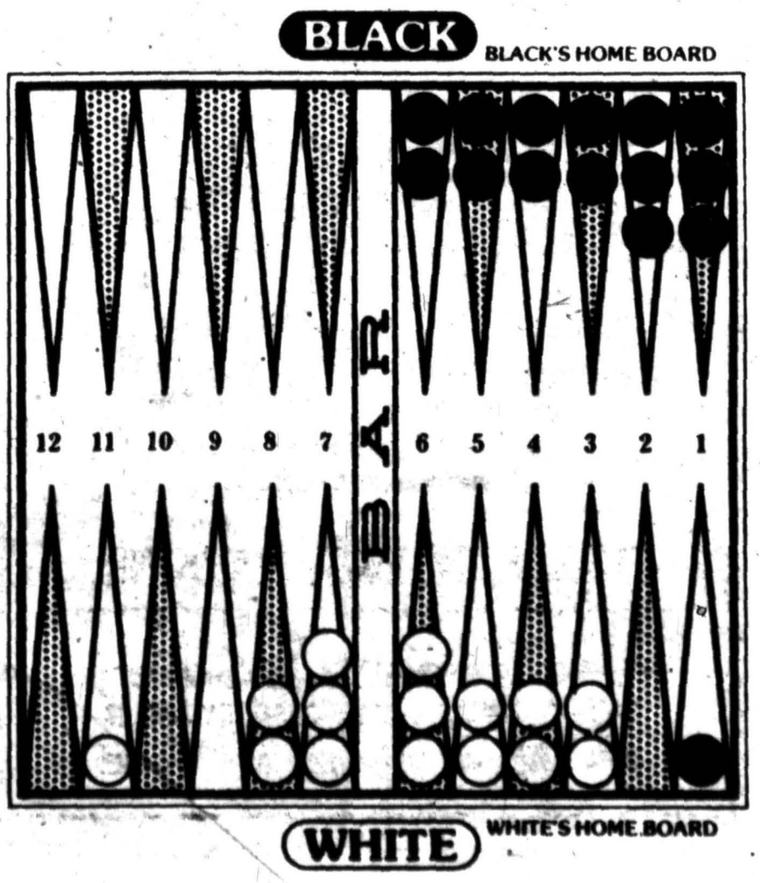
You, White, roll 6-5 in the diagrammed position. How do you play it?

There is nothing to be said for making your 1-point by moving six from your 7-point and five from your 6-point. If Black then comes in on your 2-point, he will be able to get out with a six as soon as you move off your 8-point; and he might then be ahead in the race. Meanwhile, you have put two men out of play on your 4-point where they are unable to help you shut Black safely out of your board.

The recommended play is to come in from the 11-point to your 5-point with the six and drop a blot on your 2-point with the five. You would be delighted if Black were foolish enough to hit that blot. You would simply wait on the bar until Black opens his board. Meanwhile, Black would be unable to escape from your board since he is locked in behind a six-point prime. If Black leaves a blot in his home board, you might be able to hit it and thus get a second man back. Then you would have reasonable chance for a gammon.

Of course, nothing so wonderful would happen if Black is an experienced player, but all this means is that your blot on the 2-point is safe. You will almost surely manage to cover it at your next roll with any three, four or six; and then there will be time enough to think of making your 1-point.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.



What's at the movies

Alien: Suspense-filled film about the crew of a space vehicle that tracks down a distress signal to a wrecked spacecraft occupied by mushroom-like creatures. The heroine is played by Signourney Weaver. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Excaliber: Loosely based on the legends of King Arthur, this story centers around the miraculous sword Excaliber, which Arthur was said to have pulled from a stone, making him king of the realm. Rated R. At the Cinema 70.

The Four Seasons: A romantic comedy about intimate friendships. Starring Alan Alda and Carol Burnett. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theatre.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: The sexual confusion of two normal teenagers is compounded by the hilarious antics of the mad Dr. Frank N. Furter, an alien transvestite from the planet Transexual. The stereotype horror movie/science fiction characters, including a tap-dancing groupie and a demented pair of siblings who serve as the doctor's servants, romp through the movie singing rock and roll of all vintages. Rated R. Saturday's late show at the Dream Theare.

The Texas Chain Saw Massacre: Based on an actual occurrence in a sparsely populated part of Texas, the film unfolds a reign of terror involving an insane family, grave robbers and cannibalism. At the State Three Cinemas.

Xanadu: Olivia Newton-John is back again, this time as an Olympian muse who appears on earth to satisfy the wishes of a young artist, played by Michael Beck, and a one-time nightclub owner, Gene Kelly. Music abounds in this screen fantasy, with Olivia and the Electric Light Orchestra supplying the sounds. At the Valley Cinema.

For further information, phone 373-3955.

Fiesta de los Padres is Sunday

The 18th annual Fiesta de los Padres will be held Sunday, June 7 at the San Carlos Cathedral, 550 Church St., Monterey.

It was on June 7, 1770 that Father Junipero Serra landed at Monterey and began work to establish a mission.

The mission was built inside the Presidio of Monterey, but before a year had passed Father Serra realized he could not continue the mission duties because there was so much military activity nearby.

He moved the mission to a new site near the mouth of the Carmel River. The San Carlos Chapel remained to administer to the spiritual needs of the soldiers and Indians.

The Fiesta de los Padres is held on church grounds to give thanks and to bring the people of the area together for a festive day.

This year the fiesta will offer game booths, bazaars and continuous entertainment by local singers and musicians. There is no admission charge.

A barbecue will be served from 12 p.m. to 5 p.m. The cost will be $4.50 per person.

Christian Women's Club lunch

The Monterey Peninsula Christian Women's Club will have a luncheon and a program featuring Uta Baroody from Pacific Telephone, singer John Vigna, and speaker Laura Lou Tolles of Menlo Park on Tuesday, June 9, from noon to 2 p.m., at the Holiday Inn, Monterey.

Cost is $5, and reservations must be made in advance. The public is invited.

Christian Women's Club was established in 1949 and now has locations throughout the United States, Canada, Europe and Asia.

The Monterey Peninsula Christian Women's Club presents a monthly meeting the second Tuesday of every month. New members are always welcome. Voluntary contributions support national Missionary Representatives, Stonescraft Ministries and Village Missionaries.

Father Farrell's wisdom

Benediction given at the Conference of District 522, Rotary International, Doubletree Inn, Sunday May 3, 1981

Oh almighty and eternal God, we ask thy benediction on all Rotarians and Rotary Anns as they depart for their homes after attending this successful conference.

During this Eastertide and Passover season there have been innumerable sermons preached in church and synagogue pointing at our duty to show our neighbor love, kindness, sympathy, empathy, tenderness and sensitivity. How have we been putting these exhortations into practice? Are we of the Judeo-Christian heritage any kinder than pagans and Zoroastrian sun worshippers? Do we talk a good game or do we play it? Do all these admonitions run off like water off a duck's back? When we get home do we still practice the four "B's," belittling, backbiting, browbeating and bitching? The wise old Irish grandmother says, "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." The gambler says, "Put up or shut up." The politician says, "Put your money where your mouth is."

If we say we love God we should show it by loving all his creatures with no exception.

It would be amusing if our guardian angels had little bells and everytime we violated God's law of love against our neighbor the bell would ring. I wonder whose bell will toll in this room in the next few minutes? I wonder if mine will ever stop ringing? However, let us go on record that no Rotarian or Rotary Ann ever be known as a ding-a-ling.

Amen.

IT WAS A GREAT day when the children at Carmel Woods School celebrated the annual May Festival last Friday, May 29. The kids are seen here trying their luck in a hula-hoop contest.

May Festival at Woods School

WHAT DO YOU GET when three young people dance? It could be a troika, especially if the lass is attired in Russian peasant dress. These are third-graders at Woods.

Alan McEwen photos

COSTUMED GIRLS showed they were fleet of foot and agile as they hopped to avoid the bars operated by a determined youngster.

THE GIRLS wore garlands in their hair and held hands as they danced around the maypole at the annual Carmel Woods School May Festival

A petition has been filed by MIRIAM DOWNIE in the Superior Court of Monterey County requesting that MIRIAM DOWNIE be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

A hearing on the petition will be held on June 19, 1981 at 9:30 a.m. in Dept. A, located at 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, California 93940.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should either appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court or present it to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 700 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire prior to four months from the date of the hearing noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file a request with the court to receive special notice of the filing of the inventory of estate assets and of the petitions, accounts and reports described in section 1200 of the California Probate Code.

AN ABSOLUTELY CHARMING TWO-BEDRM. NEAR TOWN

South of Ocean on an 80'x100' lot. If you like wood, you'll be crazy about the living room with its two-story exposed-beam ceiling. There are two baths, a sleeping loft for guests, and a wee peek at the ocean. The large, wood-panelled formal dining room doesn't feel formal. The garden, with its big oaks is natural but not overgrown. It's a great house, night or day. It is probably possible to create a vacant lot if one is willing to sacrifice the dining room and, to some extent, the charm of the home. Priced at $379,000, which is about replacement cost.

ONE-BEDROOM CHARMER IN A TOP LOCATION

In fact, it's only three blocks to the beach and a not-bad walk to town. The kitchen has been remodeled and the house has been tastefully decorated. There's a great big usable deck off the living room, and an area on the roof for sunbathing in privacy. In fact, the property as a whole offers privacy. We think it is listed below the replacement cost at $259,500.

PREPARE YOUR HOME FOR SELLING

By Herma Smith Curtis

Once you've decided to sell your home, there are a number of things you can do to help get the best possible price in the shortest amount of time.

Many families learn to live with a broken doorknob or a cracked window. All of these little things should be fixed when you decide to sell your home, however, because no prospective buyer wants to do the things you've let stack up.

Use caution, however, in planning major improvements that you think will enable you to get more for the house than you paid for it. Of course, an investment in a paint job where it's obviously needed will be well worth the cost. The same is true with carpeting that his shabby enough to discourage potential buyers.

Most prospective buyers would rather plan their own major changes, and you are usually wiser to sell them a house with potential at a price they can afford.

For more information on marketing your home, call Herma S. Curtis R.E./Better Homes and Gardens® at 624-0176.

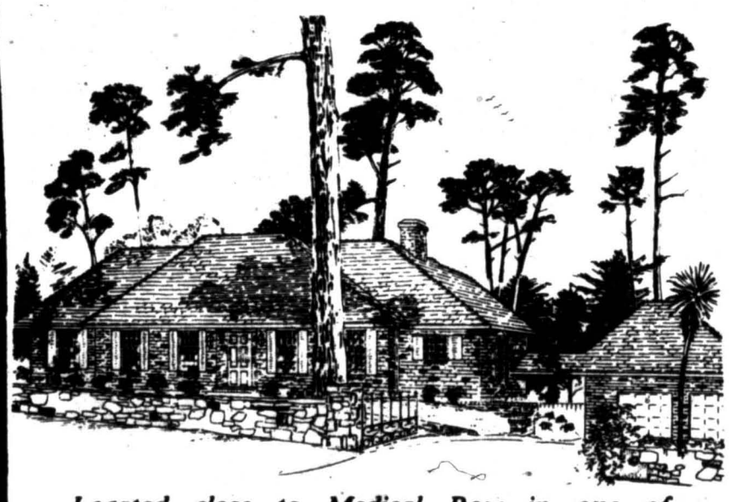
AN AWARD-WINNING RESIDENCE IN MONTEREY'S FINEST LOCATION!



Located close to Medical Row in one of Monterey's finest and sunniest residential areas, within walking distance to schools and shopping, view an elegant French Provincial brick home. It includes four bedrooms (a gorgeous master suite), 2½ baths, library or formal dining room and breakfast room with lovely bow window adjacent to the beautiful built-in kitchen. The family room has a half-bath and an entire wall of built-in storage. In the living room is a massive free-standing fireplace balanced by a wall of tall windows and French doors that lead to the patio. An oversized double garage and an imposing approach to "arrive in style" complete the picture. Situated on an absolutely outstanding huge lot right inside Peter's Gate. Priced at $350,000, and the owner will lease with option to buy. Please call 372-4508.

SERENITY ON THE SPYGLASS COURSE

Architecturally designed and built by the owners, this luxury home is approached through wooded gates to the courtyard entry and entered through massive redwood doors which open onto the warm, mission-tiled entrance foyer. This splendid room offers 20' cathedral ceilings, and overlooks the 13th fairway of Spyglass Golf Course. Through the formal dining room, enter your dream kitchen which is fully equipped with modern conveniences including an outstanding island butcher block counter. The other gracious rooms include a private master suite, three bedrooms, 3½ baths, den, wine cellar and a dark room. Rarely is a home as well designed as this one. Offered at $550,000. Please call 372-4508 or 625-3300.

DEL MONTE FAIRWAYS

Situated on a half-acre wooded lot offering privacy and seclusion in this fine, sunny residential area, close to the Del Monte golf course, there is a lovely home with Mediterranean flair. There is also an absolutely charming self-contained guest apartment with balcony and view. The main residence features 2½ bedrooms — one with Franklin stove — two very large baths, and an inviting living room with glass-enclosed stone fireplace. The modern kitchen is all ceramic tile with top-of-the-line appliances, breakfast bar opening into the dining area and a step-down family room. Of course, there is a Spanish courtyard with fountain, redwood decks, a double garage with electric opener, and a circular drive to arrive in style. Offered at $289,000. Please call 372-4508.

YANKEE POINT ESTATE

Two new ocean-view homes have been built on this beautiful wooded 1½-acre estate. The main house is a superb structure with four bedrooms and a children's living room complete with fireplace. Add to this a charming two-bedroom house with soaring ceilings, clerestory windows, and a wraparound deck for a package that cannot be beaten. Also, membership in the private beach is included. $750,000. Please call 624-0176.

PEBBLE BEACH EXECUTIVE ESTATE

A wooded 1.2-acre lot is the site for this 6,000-square-foot magnificent new executive estate. Enter through carved double doors onto a slate foyer, and step down into a living room of palatial proportions with a 27-foot-high open-beam ceiling, floor-to-ceiling glass accented by finely finished redwood, and a mammoth fireplace. The right wing contains a 4+ car garage, storage room, utility room, family room with fireplace and tiled wetbar, a formal dining room with a stained glass window, and a spacious kitchen with richly-tiled counters and top-quality built-ins. Hand-crafted oak stair rails lead to a loft, and double doors open to the master suite with his and her baths, tiled Jacuzzi, fireplace, two walk-in closets and a private balcony. The left wing contains four additional bedrooms, two tiled baths, a huge den with firepalce and wetbar, and a custom sauna. Mirrored closet doors, central vacuum system, smoke detectors, 1,350 square feet of decks, and close to The Lodge and golf courses. Truly a showcase property, offered at $935,000. Please call 624-0176.

The Weekender to End 'em All!

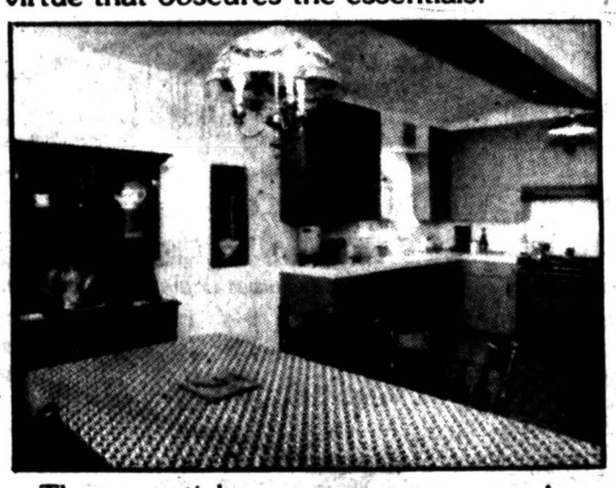
Charm? That's extra, something you expect in Carmel, but sometimes a deceptive virtue that obscures the essentials.



The essentials — every one — are here. Plus charm. Plus a skylighted sunroom on the front, with a view of the sea. Its uses are legion: game room, entertainment area, overflow bedroom. Like all the rooms in the house, it has paneled walls and beamed ceilings, all wood with a light wash paint that decorates, yet allows the grain to show through.

The sunroom, kitchen and baths are floored in vinyl. Minimum care! All other rooms are oak floors. Every room is beamed and surrounded in wood. There are cupboards and closets galore, and a hidden laundry complete with washer and dryer along the central corridor.

The street in front is Lincoln, a split level with you on the high side. You're just above 2nd Avenue, and an easy walk to town or beach. You don't have to treat this as a weekender, though it's just right for it. But it can be a full time home. $239,500. Attractive financing is available.

Big Sur Coast

With miles of magnificent Big Sur Coast view both to the south and north, also exemplifying the elegance and fine craftsmanship distinguishing the 18th century, American Federalist period of architecture, a home,. also a guest house, are set amid lawns and low-care planting enhancing a three-acre, clifftop site in Coastlands, a private area of 27 homes approximately 25 miles south of Carmel.

Constructed of selected "heart of redwood" with shingled roof, the main house features windows soaring to 14-feet high ceilings. Across the central, brick-paved courtyard is the guest house in harmony with the larger structure.

Paneled ceiling treatment and parquet flooring are found in the dining room, also in the master bedroom with carpeted and compartmented bathroom. A modern kitchen with a walk-in pantry; impressive, windowed entrance hall and adaptable attic space complete the main house interior.

The guest house, with similar fireplace and interior as the main dwelling, has a bar/kitchen unit and bathroom. An office/workshop building, also off the central court, adds to livableness of this peerless property as do, too, ocean-facing, brick-paved patios providing outdoors enjoyment of the surf-fringed shorelines below. $675,000.
